

Supreme court okays city power plant

The Missouri Supreme Court has upheld Sikeston's plans to build a 235-megawatt power plant and sell the power to 11 other communities.

The court's decision, handed down this morning, was announced during a press conference at the Board of Municipal Utilities building, 138 N. Prairie St.

The court upheld Sikeston on all the points raised in a lawsuit brought by Charles Mitchell of Sikeston and Don Diven of Trenton, later joined by Arkansas-Missouri Power Co.

The court said Sikeston is authorized under state law to build the power plant and sell excess power to other communities, according to Manuel Drumm, the former city attorney who represented the city.

The court said the sales contracts with the cities are proper and that Trenton and the other 10 towns may buy Sikeston's excess power.

That was the key to the power plant plans. Those cities will help pay for the plant. They will drop off the power grid over the years until about the year 2000, when Sikeston will be using the plant's full output.

The Court also said Sikeston's revenue bond plans are satisfactory and that the coal reserves can be funded with the revenue bonds.

Drumm said that while three and a half months seems a long time for the court to take to rule, it was "almost a world's record."

It seemed long to us, he said, but is was expeditious for them.

The ruling means that Sikeston can now move ahead on the project, which has been stalled by the wait for the court's decision.

Drumm said the city may be able to issue the bonds within 90 days, but that decision depends on the bonding attorneys.

The coal contract with Western Fuels, Inc., can be signed soon, but some details remain to be negotiated.

E. R. "Dick" Inman, director of the Board of Municipal Utilities, said plans call for site work to begin later this year or early in 1978. He said he was "elated" by the court's decision.

Board Chairman William Bess said the plant will ensure Sikeston of a power supply in the future when there will be shortages all over the United States.

He added that the board had already spent $400,000 on the project and if the court had ruled against the project, the board

"would have had some things to answer for."

The new power plant will be a massive addition to the city's skyline, towering 210 feet high, 10 feet higher than the present steam plant's smokestack.

The new smoke stack will be 450 feet high. The structure will be located on 455 acres of land in north of Compress Road, west of the present plant. The coal reserve will hold 600,000 tons of coal in an 18-acre pile.

The board has done something no one else has done or even attempted, City Councilman Steve Sikes said, adding the project is so large its hard to comprehend.

Former City Manager W. Raymert Miller said most people do not really understand the importance of the new plant. He said in a short time Sikeston will become known as one of the most progressive cities in the state.

State Sen. John Dennis, Democrat of Benton, whose power pooling legislation was important to the city's plans, said the voters showed confidence in the city leadership when they passed the massive bond issue.

The new power plant now puts a burden on the City Council to provide services for the people and industry the power plant will bring to Sikeston, according to Bill Wellborn, executive secretary of the Sikeston Area Chamber of Commerce.

Unless Sikeston can provide the services, such as water and sewer that the influx will demand, the city will not fully realize the new plant's benefits, he said.

The power plant will create 375 jobs at the peak of construction in 1978-79. An additional 40-45 employees will have to be hired to run the plant once it is finished.

Bess said the board "owes so much to so many people." He said no one really opposed the project.

The lawsuit by Mitchell and Diven was a "friendly lawsuit," although those involved in the case would not use that term for publication, and was designed to ensure the legality of Sikeston's plans.

Councilman Roger Tolliver said the board should be congratulated for the work it has put into the project.

Mayor Eric Piel said Drumm should receive a lot of credit for the court's decision and that a large amount of legal work went into today's ruling.

Councilwoman Mary Doggett said the project was "a real plus for the city."

Justice Department has new report on Lance

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Justice Department's criminal fraud division is studying a new report by the comptroller of the currency which reportedly shows that Bert Lance widely used bank-owned aircraft for family and political purposes.

A spokesman for the Justice Department confirmed Sunday that the division had received the study. But he said its referral was routine and did not necessarily indicate there would be any prosecution.

President Carter, meanwhile, was said to be considering the postponement until next week of a news conference which almost certainly would be focused on the financial affairs of his budget director, including the question of whether Lance should resign.

Press Secretary Jody Powell said today no final decision has been made on whether to put off the session, originally scheduled for Wednesday. But he indicated the President may want to wait until Lance completes his testimony scheduled to begin Thursday before the Senate Government Affairs Committee.

In Lance's native Georgia, the president-elect of the American Bankers Association said today that the Lance affair "is casting a pall over the banking industry... it may give banking a black eye if it goes unchallenged."

A. A. Mulligan, in a speech prepared for the National Bank Card Convention in Atlanta, said he doesn't know if Lance actually has done anything wrong, but some of the alleged activities "are clearly not typical of banks in this country."

"I see red whenever I hear anyone dismiss the allegations about overdrafts and improper disclosure about loans as being 'just typical business practices,'" Mulligan said.

While confirming the existence of the comptroller's report, the Justice Department spokesman refused to discuss the contents.

But the Washington Post said in today's editions that the report says Lance, who heads the Office of Management and Budget, used two planes owned by the Georgia banks he headed to take personal vacations, to fly his children to school, to commute and to take part in politics.

The report came amid new suggestions that Lance resign to avoid embarrassment to Carter and as the Senate committee prepared for its second week of hearings. See No. 1 Page 10

Court strikes down government immunity

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The Missouri Supreme Court today ruled city, county and state governments in Missouri could be sued by citizens for damages.

The state's highest court struck down the theory of "sovereign immunity," thus making all governmental units in the state liable for damages caused by them or their employees.

The doctrine goes back to old English Common law, which said the king could do no wrong and also has been a part of the American legal system for years. However, over the past few decades most states have either modified or abolished the doctrine, so people could sue government just as they would be able to sue private companies.

The court had considered four cases involving suits against governmental units, but the 6-1 ruling came on a case involving a woman who had sued the state Highway Commission for damages she suffered when her car went out of control on Highway 71 in Jackson County. Although the trial court had dismissed her claim, based on the sovereign immunity theory, the case eventually went to the State Supreme Court.

"We have considered the justification for the continued validity of the doctrine and find them illogical and unconvincing," said Judge Robert Seiler, writing the high court's opinion. Judge Robert Donnelly dissented from the decision. He said the Missouri Legislature, not the courts, should make the final determination on governmental immunity.

In its ruling the court noted over the last 30 years there had been wide acceptance in other state of the position that governments should be liable for damages, whether the change had come from the legislatures or the courts.

One of the reasons usually cited to support continuing governmental immunity was that the financial stability of the government would be threatened if the people were allowed to sue.

But the high court said there was no evidence to demonstrate that removing the doctrine of sovereign immunity would "substantially impair the financial stability of government" to the extent the operation of government would be impaired.

The court also said the argument suits against government hurt the people as a whole had "lost all forcefulness today since governmental units have a corporate or quasi-corporate" status.

The court's ruling means that county, city and state government facilities and institutions will be liable for damages as is private businesses.

Smiths free on $5,000 bond each

BENTON — Brenda and Charles David Smith of Illinois were released Saturday evening from Scott County Jail on $5,000 bond each, to appear before Magistrate Judge Lloyd G. Briggs Wednesday on charges of mistreatment of a child.

The charges were filed by Scott County prosecuting attorney David Shy, and the couple was arrested, Saturday, following a coroner's inquest, which established pneumonia as the cause of the Sept. 3, death of their 10-month old daughter Amanda Sue Haynes.

A headline in the Sunday edition of the Daily Standard incorrect in stating the couple was charged in the death of the infant. The coroner's jury determined that the cause of death was from the pneumonia. In an additional statement in the verdict, the six jurors said they felt with proper medical attention, the child would probably have survived, but they did not name the parents as being directly responsible in the death.

EP man seriously hurt in wreck

An East Prairie man was seriously injured today and five persons received minor injuries Sunday, in three accidents on area roads, the highway patrol reported today.

An accident at 7:40 a.m. today on Route Y, three miles north of Wyatt in Mississippi County caused serious injuries to Larry Keith Baker, 20, of East Prairie.

Baker, driver of a northbound tractor-trailer unit loaded with shelled corn, apparently came around a curve too fast, causing him to lose control. The trailer skidded off the road and the entire vehicle overturned.

Baker was taken to Missouri Delta Community Hospital.

Three Fredericktown teen-agers were injured in a single-vehicle accident at 5:30 a.m. Sunday on East Castor River Road, six miles east of Fredericktown.

The patrol said a car driven east by Brenda G. Stacy, 16, of Fredericktown met another vehicle on a curve, then ran off the road, struck a large rock and a tree.

The driver and two passengers, Warren S. Stephens, 15, and William D. Porter, 17, of Fredericktown were taken to Madison County Hospital in Fredericktown for treatment of minor injuries.

A Doniphan man, Dee Aubra Rice, 77, received minor injuries in a one-car accident at 12:25 p.m. Sunday on Route 160, 14 miles west of Poplar Bluff in Butler County.

had been out checking the lines for breaks and the lift station.

Everything looks in fine shape, he said, except for the pumps.

The water shortage problem started over a week ago, when a small fuse blew at the water plant on Sept. 3 stopping the pumps but not sounding an alarm.

The fuse was easily replaced, but the next day water pump number seven broke when a casing split in the well. A relief valve was used and the problem was brought under control.

That pump worked, but not up to its usual capacity. The pump pulled the water up, but when it hit the break it seeped back into the well so the full amount of water was not getting into the line.

It was providing about 180 gallons per minute (GPM) when the city required 200 GPM to meet its needs.

On Tuesday, the Singer Co. of Stuttgart, Ark. arrived at the scene and pulled the faulty pump, taking it back to Stuttgart for repairs.

Plans were to return the pump today. The crew had not arrived from Arkansas this morning, but were expected by about 12:30 p.m.

During the week, citizens were asked to conserve water to get through the crisis.

On Thursday afternoon Water Superintendent Scott Bolin resigned.

Bloomfield water shortage has town dry and residents thirsty

By FRANK WATSON

BLOOMFIELD — Bloomfield citizens this morning are without water, causing the closing of Bloomfield public schools, Tucker's Cafe car wash and laundromats and the partial closing of Elder Manufacturing Co. plant.

Two of the three pumps used by the city are now out of order, but it is still hoped that water can again be supplied to the city by 6 p.m. today.

The water has been off since 5 p.m. Sunday.

"I'm thirsty," City Clerk Joe Lloyd joked this morning when asked about the situation, but then explained that he and acting water superintendent Terry Crowe

Youth back in jail after brief freedom

Louis Wiggins, 18, of 1508 W. North St., was in city jail this morning after he escaped custody about 5:40 p.m. Saturday, according to the Public Safety Department.

Wiggins and another youth had been picked up earlier for taking a truck without the owner's permission. The owner decided not to prosecute.

During the arrest, Wiggins allegedly became abusive, struggled with officers and was jailed.

About at 5:40 p.m. he was taken out of the cell to make a telephone call and when the officer turned his back, Wiggins allegedly ran out of the Public Safety Department.

He was recaptured a short time later at the corner of West North and Young streets by Sgt. Anderson Walker.

Wiggins bit Walker on the chest and the officer had to seek treatment in the emergency room of Missouri Delta Community Hospital. Wiggins is charged with peace disturbance, destroying city property, assaulting a police officer and resisting arrest.

CARTER CRACKING WHIP ON DEMO ENERGY PLAN

According to reports, Jimmy Carter is displeased with the American people. Even though he announced last April that the energy crisis was the moral equivalent of war, the troops don't seem very interested in the battle. Why, they're even using and importing more oil, which forced our Commander-in-Chief to get a little sterner. The "public is not paying attention," he told a group of editors in a White House interview. "I think voluntary compliance is probably not adequate at all." He was even blunter about those guessing the battle plan — the National Energy Act of 1977. The deregulation of natural gas and oil, favored by the energy industry, would not mean "substantially increased exploration," only "a great windfall to the oil and natural gas companies of our nation." George McGovern couldn't have said it better, and already had.

Whatever grievances Carter has toward the public, he can have no ill will toward his Democratic Congress. Courtesy of the House and Senate, he now has his Department of Energy which, with its payroll of twenty thousand and budget for the coming fiscal year of $10.6 billion, may not be capable of locating a pint more oil but will perform the valuable service to persuading the bureaucrats in Mr. Carter's constituency that he does indeed consider the energy crisis a grave national issue. As for individual congressional heroes, House Majority Leader Tip O'Neill packed the Ad Hoc Energy Committee with those who think the solution to the energy crisis lies in Washington. So quickly was the Carter energy package rammed through, the Committee's GOP minority didn't even have a chance to offer its own energy program.

Democratic power plays and presidential harangues wouldn't be necessary, of course, if the public were not so suspicious of the energy crisis and the Administration's solution. Recent studies show that the public's suspicion is well grounded. One of these, by the government's own Energy Research and Development Administration, so displeased Mr. Carter that he ordered the offending officials back to the drawing boards. ERDA came up with estimates that at $2.25, and provided "exotic" sources are brought into production, the nation would soon be glutted with natural gas.

The question is, Why is Carter so alarmed? Why is he trying to alarm everybody else?

GIVE US BACK OUR POLICE

They sat in the dusk with candles under a grape arbor in the small, neat back yard and listened quietly to one another. Just over the fence, a small group of black and white children, playing together, moved down the concrete alley.

The tales were not of places they had been and things they had done. They were serious, hushed, flat-toned tales of murder in the neighborhood, of a shooting and of theft.

It was a Denver backyard, but it could be anywhere in our big cities. All of us know the undercurrent of alarm, the same sense of helpless resignation and danger that such talk stirs. It cries out for the police to cure. But they seem tragically unable to solve it.

More police patrols? Well, a few more cars can swing through. It's a big city, though, and after a few nights of driving through, perhaps stopping a kid or two, the police move on to another park of their precinct where things are stirring.

There is no one we can turn to, really, no one we know.

The men and women in those police cars are strangers to us, now, people we only meet when we are snarling mad over a traffic ticket or in shock over a crime.

Their work pattern breaks their living style into shifts of mornings, afternoons and midnight. So we seldom see them, even if they live down the street. They become friends with one another, like newspaper reporters who often find the company of outsiders boring and flat.

Little by little they have been withdrawn from the neighborhoods they are supposed to protect. The automobile has taken them away from the sidewalks. The two-man patrolling has given them a partner instead of relying on friends in the homes and businesses around them.

The police car gives immense mobility. But it also makes the police remote and anonymous and spreads them too thin.

Most neighborhood crimes are local — not some known and clever felon plying the rooftops for treasure but simply wayward children of a failed family. Know the neighborhood and you know the troublemakers. Ride in a car and how can you know the neighborhood?

In some cities, police are instructed to control any situation they find on the street. This makes them aggressive and hostile, unwilling to tolerate any backtalk. They are dealing with a generation of young people who feel driven to speak up for their rights. The combination is explosive.

For a policeman, the stress is heavy and he pays a terrible toll in suicide, illness, stomach trouble and divorce.

Perhaps, then, it is time to re-think the deployment of police. Perhaps it is time to break off the military-like training, to downplay the scout cars and begin to buy policemen homes in the neighborhoods at city expense. Install them and their families in every section of town. Give them the neighborhood as their own turf. Let them work the hours they need to among people they know who look to them for help. The man who knows the neighborhood can deal with its problems with skill and understanding.

City hall, give us back our policemen again. We need them.

And then, in those moments around dusk, when tales of crime seem to spin us deep in a morbid spiral of fear, we will have someone to call who can help us.

"Hey, fella. Can you spare a little change?"

KELLEY SAYS JUSTICE DEPT. HOBLES FBI INVESTIGATION
Recently FBI Director Clarence Kelley spoke out about the Soviet Union conducting a massive espionage offensive against the United States, and that a substantial number of Communist-bloc officials stationed here are engaged in illegal intelligence operations.

"Their targets," Kelley said, "are virtually all encompassing, including our political, economic, agricultural, military, scientific and technical resources."

In a speech directed more to President Carter and Atty. Gen. Griffin Bell than to his Kansas City audience, Kelley warned that the "level of the threat currently posed" by foreign espionage agents means that the FBI "will have to be that much more diligent in ensuring that we will fulfill our obligations to the American people."

The FBI's problem is compounded, Kelley said, by an "ever-increasing influx of Communist-bloc officials" — a "substantial number" of whom are engaged in espionage.

Kelley ticked off the statistics: —In the last 10 years, the number of Soviet-bloc officials in the United States has more than doubled, from 806 in 1966 to 1,995 ten years later.

—In the last two years, the number of Soviet officials alone has increased 20 per cent. —Since 1973, the number of Soviets entering the United States under assorted "cultural exchange agreements" has increased more than 100 per cent. More than 5,000 Soviet visitors — students, scientists, journalists — are entering the U.S. each year and many are known to be engaged in intelligence operations.

Only last month, the FBI broke up two major Soviet spy projects. In New Jersey, agents arrested a Russian immigrant who was charged with attempting to obtain classified documents relating to a satellite communications project at the RCA Space Center in Princeton. The plans were to be delivered to the second secretary of the Soviet United Nations Mission and he was named as a co-conspirator.

In California, an American with top-secret security clearance was charged with passing military secrets to a colleague who in turn sold it to the Soviets. A "science attaché" at the Soviet Embassy in Mexico City was named as a co-conspirator.

There was other disquieting news from Kelley. Domestic security investigations by the bureau have been drastically reduced. Such probes must now be "tied as clearly as possible to criminal statutes and are in accordance with new guidelines drawn up by the attorney general."

So domestic security cases were slashed from 21,414 in July 1973 to 4,888 in March 1976. And Kelley said the bureau is handling "even fewer cases now."

Top-level Justice Department officials said that FBI probes into potentially violent groups have almost come to a standstill. Explained Kelley: "Under guidelines (drafted by former Atty. Gen. Edward Levi) we have got to be able to prove that a crime is about to take place before we can act. What this means, quite simply, is that we have no intelligence in the area of potential domestic subversion."

This is straight-talk that the American people need, and not the double-talk of politicians in Washington.

CONTROLLING PLUTONIUM PRODUCTION

From The Los Angeles Times

There are encouraging signs of progress in President Carter's campaign to persuade other nations to join the United States in avoiding the production of plutonium for use in nuclear power reactors. If the Carter policy is to succeed, however, this country must come up with a credible plan for bringing reactor fuel supplies under international ownership and control.

Plutonium, when separated from spent fuel elements, can be reused to help fuel conventional power reactors of the sort already in widespread use. Plutonium-burning fast-breeder reactors, still in the development stage, may actually be able to produce more fuel than they consume.

These are attractive characteristics—especially to nations that depend heavily on outside sources for both oil and uranium. Unfortunately, however, plutonium can also be used to make nuclear weapons—and no foreseeable system of international inspection can prevent such diversions.

So the United States has sought to dissuade France and West Germany from going through with prospective exports of plutonium separation plants to nations that do not have nuclear weapons.

In addition, Carter announced in April that the United States would forego completion of a separation facility, and would not go forward with a breeder-reactor demonstration project. Other governments, however, have strongly resisted his proposal that they emulate the American example.

But the Carter cause is far from hopeless. Although unwilling to announce it officially, the French government is holding back delivery of blueprints for construction of a spent-fuel reprocessing plant in Pakistan. This adds to the pressure on West Germany to step back from its even larger sale of sensitive technology to Brazil.

The Carter policy has stimulated public debates on the pros and cons of plutonium-burning power reactors all over Europe — and forced the governments in question to move cautiously.

London has decided to hold off plans to build a plutonium-burning breeder reactor until the ramifications can be studied thoroughly. The West German government has been obliged to announce that it is not committed irrevocably to the use of plutonium as reactor fuel, that alternative technologies are being explored.

If the Carter plan is to succeed, however, the Japanese and Europeans must be assured that, if they go along with Washington and forego the separation and use of plutonium, they will have dependable supplies of conventional uranium reactor fuel at prices that their economies can afford. And this requires nothing less than the internationalization of the supply end.

NO IMMUNITY FOR ANYONE

Recently a state legislator was stopped by officers and refused to take a breathalyzer test to determine whether or not he was guilty of driving while intoxicated. He claimed immunity because he is a legislator. Under the Constitution of Missouri, immunity is provided for legislators except for treason, felonies or breaches of the peace. Drunken driving is a misdemeanor. That part of the Constitution should be repealed.

As has so often been said, in referring to former President Nixon and many others, neither a President nor anyone else should be above the law.

There should be no immunity for anyone.

Victor Riesel's guest columnist today is Secretary of Commerce Juanita Kreps. She writes on the measures being taken by the Department of Commerce to bring about new opportunities for woman-owned businesses.

By Juanita Kreps

WASHINGTON — Not long ago, the Comptroller of the Currency approved applications for two new national banks, one in Washington, D.C., and the other in Denver, Colo. By itself, this was not news. What was news was that of the more than 4,700 national banks in the United States these were the first to be run by women.

Although there are several women-owned banks among the 1,000-plus that are state-chartered, it has taken until 1977 for the federal government to open the doors, highly illustrative of the problem women face of breaking into the area of business ownership.

Not until last year had the government bothered to count the number of women who are business proprietors. There is no law or regulation requiring such statistics. However, last year the Department of Commerce made a count.

This survey by the Census Bureau, paid for by the Office of Minority Business Enterprise, found that in 1972 out of 8,730,000 firms in the United States, 402,000 or only 4.6 per cent, were woman-owned. Furthermore, these businesses received only three tenths of 1 per cent of all revenues paid American firms.

The survey also showed that most woman-owned businesses were sole proprietorships, that 71 per cent were concentrated in the retail and nonprofessional service trades, and that only 13 per cent had paid employees. The average woman entrepreneur with an average of five employees in 1972 grossed less than $51,000, while the average gross for all U.S. firms was more than three-quarters of a million dollars.

Although there is general recognition that women play a vital role in the social and economic growth of our nation, few efforts have been made to encourage them to enter the business world as owners, co-owners, or managers of business concerns.

Women encounter the problems of all small businesspersons: lack of capital, lack of management and technical assistance, lack of marketing and procurement opportunities. These problems are compounded for the prospective businesswoman by traditional attitudes and by the sex discrimination that continues to persist in our society.

The federal government for some years has had programs to assist small businesses with problems of capitalization, management, technical assistance, and procurement, but none addressing the additional obstacles faced by women.

In 1975, the U.S. Civil Rights Commission found that woman-owned businesses and those owned by minorities were receiving less than 1 per cent of the more than $130 billion spent annually by federal, state, and local governments for procurement of goods and services. Commission interviews indicated that attitudinal barriers and other obstacles peculiarly applicable to women were in part responsible for their unequal share of this huge market.

The Commerce Department has only recently begun to offer assistance. The Office of Minority Business Enterprise has been examining the need for a national directory of women business owners. Such a directory would identify women business owners. Such a directory would identify woman-owned businesses with whom private and government contractors could do business.

The American Women's Economic Development Corporation, a non-profit organization, has received funds from Commerce's Economic Development Administration for a pilot study of women in business. The group will focus on two areas: 1) helping women to start and expand their own business, and 2) assisting corporation, government, and private agencies to expand the economic opportunities for women. The project is the first in which women business owners have been the object of a study paid for with federal funds.

Late this year or early in 1978, the Census Bureau, which is an agency of the department of Commerce, will sponsor a conference on the statistical needs relating to women, including the problems faced by businesswomen. We expect that discussion of the issues by the data suppliers and users participating will result in a better understanding of needs in this important area.

In the meantime, members of my own staff are studying the feasibility of preparing for 1977 a census study similar to its 1972 report on woman-owned businesses.

The Department of Commerce was set up to foster business. It does so by providing scores of services. I have asked that officials responsible for each of these services see that briefings especially designed for women, both owners and business groups, be made available through Commerce's many offices around the country. These will include the process of identifying domestic and international business and contracting opportunities. Also, we are trying to add a woman's perspective to the department's "procurement conferences" held throughout the country, which explain to local business people how to do business with the federal government.

These are just beginnings in the effort to improve women's place in the business community. Congress, the executive branch, and business itself, particularly financial institutions, have much left to do. So do women themselves. They need the educational base to equip them to participate in the world of business. Women have been reluctant to seek business degrees. Without them, they are at a disadvantage. When to this disadvantage are added the traditional barriers, the unbalanced statistics on women in business are not surprising. Clearly we need a change in attitude and a concerted effort if we are to achieve a better balance. That effort must come from all quarters, and soon.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND*Mississippi Sex Case Could Ignite Political Scandal

by Jack Anderson and Les Whitten

WASHINGTON — A sordid little sex offense, involving a Jackson, Miss., police lieutenant, could blow the lid off a major political scandal in Mississippi.

The amorous officer, Lt. John Moulder, allegedly threatened to arrest a young woman unless she submitted to his sexual demands. The case would deserve no special attention, except that some powerful politicians have tried hard to cover it up.

Even the formidable Sen. James Eastland, D-Miss., intervened in the case. An FBI official told us that Eastland made inquiries that led to possible "obstruction of justice."

This attempt to hush up a small incident may conceal a far bigger story about how politics is practiced in Mississippi. The scenario has a familiar ring; it is beginning to sound like a Mississippi Watergate.

Moulder is a former vice squad chief who is intimately acquainted with the backrooms of Jackson. He has confided to intimates, indeed, that he has knowledge of the after-hours activities of certain powerful political and business leaders.

Moulder has now been accused of sampling some of the vice he was supposed to prevent. He allegedly obtained warrants for the arrest of a young woman on drug charges and threatened to serve them unless she "submitted to him for sexual intercourse, both natural and unnatural," according to a confidential police report.

The charges were thoroughly investigated by the internal affairs office of the Jackson Police Dept. The FBI was also called in to determine whether the woman's civil rights had been violated.

They took sworn statements from witnesses and found circumstantial evidence supporting the woman's story. Finally, she passed and Moulder failed a lie detector test.

But before he took the test, Moulder complained privately to the operator that he suffered from "hypertension" and asked him to rig the results. The anguished polygraph operator, Sgt. Larry Robinson, happened to be a close friend of Moulder. Nevertheless, Robinson reported the incident and added in a signed statement:

"At the time I was asked to alter the charts, I at that time through strong friendship, believed that I could almost help (Moulder). After a long, sleepless night, I cannot in all good conscience help anyone and live with myself."

The desperate Moulder, unable to rig the lie detector test, spread the word that he would expose some important people if he were prosecuted. Our sources quote him as saying: "If I go down, I'm not going down alone."

Suddenly, the investigation began to go Moulder's way. Kenneth Fairly, director of the Mississippi Narcotics Bureau, complained to FBI agents that the woman was "a bitch" and that they were trying to hang "a bum charge" on Moulder, according to confidential police reports. He added fiercely that he held three warrants against her for "buying" drugs from a state agent and that he was going to send her to Parchman prison.

Russell Davis, then Jackson's mayor, declared that the evidence against Moulder was inconclusive and that the vice squad officer, therefore, would be returned to duty.

In Washington, meanwhile, competent sources say Eastland pulled strings inside the Justice Dept. to get the FBI off Moulder's back. Few men have the clout to disrupt an FBI investigation. One of the few is James Eastland — crafty, cordial, flexible, courteous — a senator who has consolidated great power not by autocratic conduct but by knowing how to bend with the wind, ever so slightly, without losing place.

As Senate Judiciary chairman, he complained to the Justice Dept. about the FBI investigation of Moulder. Two top FBI inspectors were quickly dispatched to Jackson to review the case. Without consulting the local FBI office, they began questioning the witnesses over again.

This infuriated the special agent in charge, Roy Moore, when he found out about it. He angrily warned the two inspectors that they might be guilty of obstructing justice. He also protested to FBI chief Clarence Kelley about their intervention.

The two inspectors told FBI agents in Jackson that they had been sent to review the case at Eastland's request. Justice Dept. sources report they also heard that Eastland was responsible. It was "highly unusual," they added, for the FBI to send inspectors from Washington to review a routine civil rights investigation.

Moulder also acknowledged to us that he was aware of Eastland's intervention. The senator himself said he didn't "remember anything about it."

The FBI inspectors carefully grilled everyone connected with the case, including the two agents, William Stringer and Orrin Fueling, who had conducted the investigation. The inspectors reported back to Washington that they had turned up nothing improper.

Their review had the effect, nevertheless, of taking the wind out of the investigation. U.S. Attorney for Mississippi, Robert Haulberg, still wanted to present the case to a grand jury. But he was overruled by the Justice Dept. Justice Dept. sources insist no pressure was brought on the prosecuting attorney by Sen. Eastland.

These questions remain: Why were Mississippi politicians so anxious to cover up a minor sex offense? What tales would Moulder have told if the case against him had been prosecuted? We'll report more details in a future column.

Footnote: Moulder denied the sex charges and other improprieties that were brought against him. "All I know," he told us, "is that the U.S. attorney did not see fit to indict me." We should add that we spent a month investigating the case. We not only saw the police investigative reports but interviewed the key witnesses in Mississippi.

In Brief

Billy Carter backs Lance

KANSAS CITY (AP) — President Carter's little brother, Billy, says that if he had to make a choice between Budget Director Bert Lance and the President for the best man in Washington, "I'd have a hell of a choice."

While Carter was acting as grand marshal at the 1-70 Speedway's World Cup 400 Stock Car race in Ocala, Mo., over the weekend, he also told reporters he believes there is little difference between the philosophy of the President and Alabama Gov. George Wallace. The younger Carter has long been a supporter of Wallace, and said he will help the governor campaign for a Senate seat next year.

"I'm a Wallace Democrat who voted for Jimmy Carter," he said.

Billy said Lance, the director of the Office of Management and Budget who has come under criticism recently for his financial dealings, is "the best man in Washington." But after more questions, he allowed that his brother and Lance would finish in a dead heat for that title.

"Bert (Lance) told me yesterday (Friday) he won't resign," the President's brother said Saturday. "He may be fired, but he won't resign."

And Billy said he doesn't believe the polls, which indicate Carter's popularity is slipping because of the controversy over Lance, are accurate. He said that in his travels around the country, he has found that 90 per cent of the people are for Lance.

Testimony given in trial

AMARILLO, Tex. (AP) — Gus Gavrel faced a fierce new round of cross examination today as the fourth week of testimony unfolded in the capital murder trial of millionaire Cullen Davis.

The husky, 22-year-old Gavrel previously identified the Fort Worth industrialist as the assailant who gunned him down in a midnight shooting spree last year at the showplace Davis mansion.

His date, Beverly Bass, escaped unharmed. Two others died and another fell gravely wounded.

Davis, 43, is accused of killing his 12-year-old stepdaughter, Andrea Wilborn, in a prelude to the August 1976 attack on his estranged wife Priscilla, 36, and her boyfriend, Stan Farr.

Farr, his 6-foot-0 frame riddled by four bullets, died on a mansion floor shortly before Mrs. Davis, a bullet wound in her chest, fled to a neighbor's home for help.

Israelis observe Rush Hashana

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Israelis today observed Rosh Hashana, the Jewish New Year, with prayers and picnics. Police were on stepped-up alert against terrorist attacks.

Armed guards were posted outside some synagogues and at the Wailing Wall in Jerusalem, Judaism's holiest shrine, where thousands gathered at sundown to usher in the Jewish year 5738.

Judaism follows a lunar calendar that according to tradition is calculated from the creation of the world, through all the generations listed in the Old Testament.

The holiday lasts until sundown Wednesday.

Sheriff killed in shooting

GALLATIN, Mo. (AP) — A 16-year-old youth was being held Sunday night in connection with the shooting death Sunday of Daviess County Sheriff S. L. Houghton.

The 65-year-old sheriff, who had been elected to the post several times, was shot about 3 a.m. in front of a rural home northwest of Gallatin in northwest Missouri.

The Missouri Highway Patrol said the sheriff had towed a teenager's car into Gallatin after the youth was involved in a traffic violation. The sheriff then took the youth and his mother to their home on a dead-end gravel road.

As Houghton started to leave, the patrol said, the youth flashed the porchlight, then began walking toward the sheriff's car. The youth allegedly opened the door on the passenger side, pointed a pistol at Houghton and shot him twice. He then reloaded the handgun and fired a third time, according to officers.

The youth was taken into custody and was being held in the Clinton County Jail.

The county coroner would say only that Houghton died of gunshot wounds.

Isaac Cox, Gallatin police chief, said he was awakened shortly after 3 a.m. by his dispatcher, who said: "You're sheriff's been shot somewhere in your county." Cox said a woman had called the dispatcher. Then Cox got a second call from the youth's mother, who told him: "The sheriff's been shot. He's laying in the road."

When Cox arrived, he said he found the sheriff lying face up in the road. The sheriff was still conscious, but by the time the ambulance drove the 22 miles to the nearest hospital in Cameron, he was pronounced dead.

A small caliber pistol was recovered at the scene. Houghton's father, Ben Houghton, was Daviess county sheriff about 45 years ago, according to Cox.

Utilities sue Westinghouse

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — A federal court trial under way here could have far-reaching implications on the future of one of the nation's largest manufacturers and the cost of nuclear power.

The suit brought by 20 utilities serving 33 million customers, seeks $2.5 billion from Westinghouse Electric Co. The suit centers on Westinghouse's cancellation of uranium supply contracts, which the firm says was caused by the Arab oil embargo.

If Westinghouse is forced to pay the $2.5 billion asked by the utilities, it could have a serious impact on the giant firm. If Westinghouse wins, it could mean higher bills for consumers.

Storm hits western Missouri

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Heavy rain drenched portions of northeast Kansas and western Missouri before dawn today, closing numerous streets in the Kansas City area.

Cars were stranded by high water in some city streets during the morning rush hour. By that time, the storm that had dumped nearly 6 inches of rain in some parts of the metropolitan area had been reduced to drizzle.

Sections of Kansas 92 and U.S. 59 near Oskaloosa, Kan., were closed by high water for awhile this morning, but U.S. 59 was completely reopened and Kansas 92 was open to one lane of traffic by midmorning.

Schools in the West Platte R-2 District at Weston, Mo., were closed because drivers couldn't get school buses started and there was high water in places. Mud created by the rain caused problems on some streets and roads.

There were high winds with the storm at times, and five planes were blown over and damaged at Fairfax Airport in Kansas City, Kan. The weather service said golfball-size hail fell at Baileyville, Kan., during the night.

Flash flooding occurred in widespread areas, and the National Weather Service issued a flash flood warning for portions of northwest and west-central Missouri until 10 a.m. A flash flood watch was issued for extreme northeastern Kansas this afternoon and tonight.

Some of the heaviest rain occurred in the Kansas portion of the Kansas City metropolitan area, with 5.95 inches reported at Westwood, 5.6 inches at Kansas City and Muncie and 4.17 inches at Lenexa. Five inches of rain also was reported at Tonganoxie and Horton in eastern Kansas.

The weather service said 4.25 inches of rain fell at Kansas City Municipal Airport, 3.74 at the international airport and 4.1 at Warrensburg.

The storm system that produced heavy rain in the Kansas City area between midnight and 6 a.m. had spread eastward by midmorning, and heavy rain was reported along the northern part of Missouri and the eastern border in St. Louis. Heavy rain continued in some portions of eastern Kansas and western Missouri.

Vilas, Evert claim singles at U.S. Open

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (AP) — Guillermo Vilas is No. 1 today, a proud, self-satisfied young man.

"I'm very happy with myself," he said. "I'm a very good friend of myself."

His critics had said his scorching clay court victory streak of 45 matches was not as meaningful as it seemed because it included no matches against the giants of the game of tennis, Bjorn Borg and Jimmy Connors.

But Sunday, the 25-year-old Argentine with the extreme top-spin backhand, outplayed Connors 2-6, 6-3, 7-6, 6-0 in the $482,420 U.S. Open championships. He hasn't had a crack yet at Borg, who had to default during this tournament because of a strained shoulder.

"This puts me very, very happy for sure," the bright-eyed and exuberant Vilas said after being mobbed by adoring fans at the West Side Tennis Club. The crowd had decided the match was over before the umpire did, streaming onto the court as soon as the linesman called a Connors forehand long.

Saturday, the glory was Chris Evert's, as outplayed surprising Wendy Turnbull of Australia 7-6, 6-2 for her third consecutive U.S. Open title. It was roses for both the finalists, but the Open victory was particularly sweet for Miss Evert after her loss in the Wimbledon semifinal to Virginia Wade.

Prize money for each of the winners was $33,000, with $16,500 apiece to Connors and Miss Turnbull.

Vilas, blocked by his admirers and hoisted atop their shoulders, never congratulated Connors, who stormed away from the stadium with his mother and entourage. "I will apologize when I see him," Vilas said. "I wanted to shake his hand."

"He is a great player," he said of Connors. "I have a lot of respect for him. I think he played fair. I had nothing to lose. I knew the pressure was on him since he had not won a major title (this year) and this was his last chance."

Winds gusting up to 20 miles per hour swept over the court, blowing great clouds of dust on them from the synthetic clay like Har-Tru surface. "The wind was very strange," Vilas said of his losing first set. "He was hitting rockets."

But in the second set, as Vilas became more certain, coming in on more balls, Connors grew slightly tentative, and the Argentine was able to break him in the eighth game for 5-3. Vilas, the No. 4 seed, drew a roaring standing ovation as he took the next game with a backhand passing shot.

The third set went to 5-5 and each broke the other's service at love, forcing a tie-breaker. It was reminiscent of the third-set situation Connors faced last year in the final against Borg. But last year, Connors outlasted Borg 11-9 in the tie-breaker and went on to victory.

The tie-breaker went to 3-3, then Vilas moved up to the net for a forehand volley winner. Connors netted a forehand, then Vilas hit one wide, making it 5-4. Vilas hit a forehand to the baseline for 6-4 and won on a swift forehand passing shot.

That gave Vilas extreme confidence. He then broke service in the second game of the fourth set with a crosscourt backhand that touched the sideline, broke again in the fourth when Connors' forehand volley hit the net, then kept his serve, pummeling Connors at love for 5-0.

In the final game, the two were playing the second deuce, forced when Connors double-faulted. Vilas took the advantage when the struggling Connors hit his forehand approach into the net. Their final rally had just begun when Connors hit his forehand too long.

The linesman saw it that way. Vilas thought he had. Connors stood and stared. Vilas' coach, Ion Tiriac, stood at his court-side seat and looked stern as a bull. The umpire said nothing. But the crowd had decided. The umpire made it official several moments later.

For Miss Evert, her final was the toughest match of the tournament. She had been asking for it all week, complaining politely that she wasn't getting enough competition.

Miss Turnbull provided it with the scurrying name "rabbit" among her World Team Tennis colleagues on the Cleveland Nets.

"She made me play my very best," Miss Evert said. "She played very well and she now can be considered one of the best players in the world."

Despite the loss, Miss Turnbull, seeded 12th, received the recognition that had long avoided her. She beat Ms. Wade and second-seeded Martina Navratilova en route to the final.

The first-set tie-breaker came after 12 games of steady rallies of ground strokes, and Miss Evert won it 7-3.

"Then I let her break me in the first game of the second set and she ran away with it," Miss Turnbull said. "It is really tough to play Chris on clay and I think I played very well. I'm really not disappointed."

Even as a loser, Miss Turnbull advanced further than she ever had in a major tournament.

Miss Evert seemed undisturbed by a pinched nerve in her left shoulder, saying it hurt only on the toss for her serve. She said she hadn't seen a doctor yet because she was superstitious.

"If I'm going to get it amputated, I don't want to know about it until after the tournament," Miss Evert joked.

Trojans, Michigan most impressive of Top 20

By HERSCHEL NISSENSEN
AP Sports Writer

Southern Cal and Michigan kept insisting that last season's confrontation in the Rose Bowl game should have been for college football's national championship. Off the early 1977 returns, they're probably entitled to an "I told you so."

While many of the leaders in The Associated Press preseason poll had their problems, second-ranked Michigan and No. 4 Southern Cal were impressive weekend winners—the Wolverines trouncing Illinois 37-9 and the Trojans avenging last year's only setback by trimming Missouri 27-10.

It is far too early in the season for any team to stake a solid claim to the No. 1 ranking. For example, top-rated Oklahoma barely edged unheralded Vanderbilt 25-23. No. 3 Notre Dame needed an injury to Pitt quarterback Matt Cavanaugh and six second-half turnovers to overtake the seventh-ranked—and defending national champion—Panthers 19-9. No. 5 Ohio State outlasted Miami of Florida 10-0, eighth-ranked Texas Tech held off Baylor 17-7 and

No. 10 Maryland rallied to defeat Clemson 21-14.

Sixth-ranked Alabama, however, whipped Mississippi 34-13 and dried some of Bear Bryant's tears while No. 9 Texas A&M trimmed Kansas 28-14.

Michigan came down hard on an old friend, Illinois Coach Gary Moeller, who was Bo Schembechler's top aide last year. Rick Leach threw two touchdown passes, Harlan Huckleby scored twice and the Wolverines rushed for 350 yards but Schembechler insisted it was "hard to get up for the game because everyone likes him (Moeller) so much. It was a first game and we didn't play as well as we are capable."

Moeller knew he had his work cut out for him. "There offense is probably better than any Michigan team I ever was associated with," he said.

Meanwhile, Rob Hertel threw two touchdown passes and scored once while super soph Charles White rushed for 155 yards and a touchdown to lead Southern Cal past Missouri. Hertel completed 12 of 20 passes for 203 yards, leading Missouri Coach Al Onofrio to say, "I've never seen a passer like Rob Hertel was today."

Said USC's John Robinson: "We feel we can wear an opponent down as the game goes on. We have the size and strength to run at people, even if we do make a few errors."

Oklahoma brought freshman quarterback Jay Jimerson off the bench in the final period and he scored the go-ahead touchdown on a 20-yard run. The Sooners got the clincher when Bud Hebert blocked a Vanderbilt field goal try and Barry Burget scooped it up and raced 64 yards.

While Vandy Coach Fred Panoast beefed about the officiating—"too damn many questionable calls for any football game"—OU's Barry Switzer called it "the worst exhibition of Oklahoma football I've ever seen."

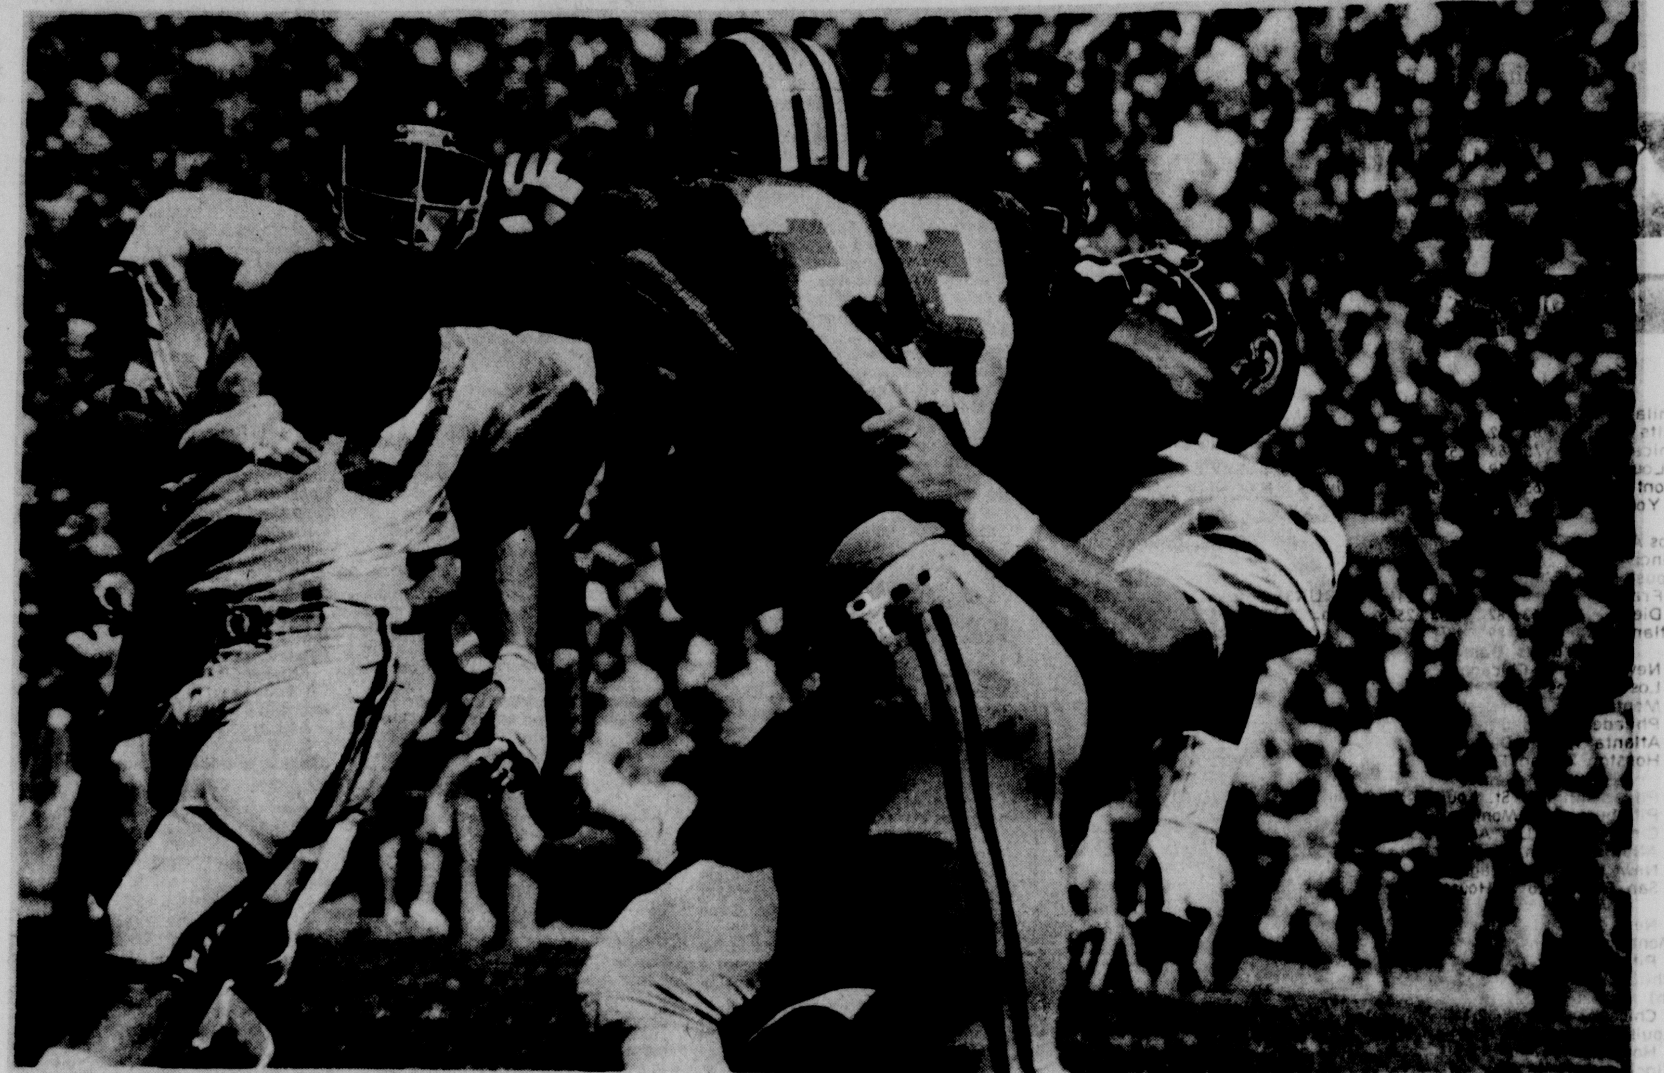

Even minus Tony Dorsett, Pitt had high hopes of defending its 1976 national crown...until Cavanaugh was kayoed by Notre Dame's Willie Fry just as he tossed a 12-yard touchdown pass to Gordon Jones late in the opening period. Cavanaugh underwent surgery Sunday for a broken arm and will be sidelined for at least a month.

"Things were starting to fall into place—and then everything is out the window," said Jackie Sherrill, Pitt's new coach.

Ohio State lost Jeff Logan, last year's top ground-gainer, with a first-half ankle injury but Ron Springs rushed for 113 yards and the game's lone touchdown on a 21-yard burst in the second quarter.

"The margin of victory was disappointing," said Woody Hayes, one of the few coaches around who won't settle for 11 one-point triumphs.

The Second Ten produced the weekend's major upset—Washington State's 19-10 shocker over 15th-ranked Nebraska. Jack Thompson, the "Throwin' Samson," hurled two scoring passes to make the head coaching debut of ex-Nebraska aide Warren Powers a smashing success.

No place to go

Missouri tailback Earl Gant finds the going tough as he fights for yardage during Saturday's 27-10 loss to Southern Cal at Columbia.

Coming up to assist an unidentifiable Trojan on the tackle is Willie Crawford (30).

Bucs' Parker to swing for fences for rest of '77

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

The Pittsburgh Pirates' "Hit Man" is putting out a contract on all National League pitchers.

"If the game situation allows it, I think I'll be swinging for home runs the rest of the year," says Dave Parker.

His primary goal, of course, is to help the Pirates win the National League East title, but the way the Philadelphia Phillies are playing, that may be an impossible dream.

More within Parker's grasp is a season of 100 runs batted in. He already has reached a cherished level—the 200-hit mark—and is on his way to the league's batting title with a .345 average.

Parker became the first National League player to reach the 200-hit plateau this season with his double in the first inning. Later, his home run made more news because it matched an accomplishment by the late Roberto Clemente.

The homer was Parker's 20th and he became the first Pirates player to collect 20 homers and 200 hits in the same season since Clemente did it in 1967.

With two RBI Sunday, Parker improved his total to 86. While Parker was having a good day, so was Greg Luzinski of the Phillies. He blasted a three-run homer, leading Philadelphia to a 6-5 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals that kept the Phillies in front of the Pirates by eight games.

In other NL action Sunday, the Cincinnati Reds defeated the Los Angeles Dodgers 6-2, the New York Mets trimmed the Chicago Cubs 7-3, the Atlanta Braves whipped the San Diego Padres 7-3, and the San Francisco Giants beat the Houston Astros 3-1. Phillies 6, Cardinals 5.

Tommy Hutton and Bake McBride both singled in the fourth inning before Luzinski ripped a pitch over the left field fence, sending the Phillies ahead 6-5.

Warren Brusstar, 5-2, was the winner with relief help from Gene Garber, who notched his 15th save.

Reds 6, Dodgers 2
Johnny Bench's two-run double triggered a four-run first inning and gave the Cincinnati catcher 100 RBI for the sixth time in his career as the Reds defeated Los Angeles. Bench's double tied him with ex-teammate Tony Perez as the only active major leaguer with six 100 RBI seasons.

Mets 7, Cubs 3
Bruce Boiesclair's two-run double keyed a four-run fifth inning, leading New York over Chicago. Before the Mets rallied, the Cubs had taken a 3-0 lead in the fourth on a double by Bill Buckner, a single by Steve Ontiveros and a two-run homer by Manny Trillo.

John Milner followed Boiesclair's big fifth-inning hit with an RBI double and Joel Youngblood capped the rally with a run-scoring single. Youngblood later doubled home two Mets runs in the ninth.

Rick Reuschel, 19-8, was unsuccessful in his third bid for his 20th victory.

Braves 7, Padres 3
Pat Rockett's run-scoring single in the sixth inning broke a 3-3 tie and Atlanta later pulled off a triple steal to highlight a three-run eighth while beating San Diego.

Garry Matthews and Biff Pocoroba were on base with walks against San Diego starter Randy Jones, 6-12, in the sixth when Rockett sent a liner to left, scoring Matthews from second with the eventual winning run.

Rockett's hit chased Jones and made a winner of Eddie Solomon, 5-5.

Giants 2, Astros 1
Rob Andrews' single in the eighth inning drove home the winning run as San Francisco beat Houston. Ed Halicki, 14-10, scattered seven hits over the first 7-3 innings before giving way to relief ace Gary Lavelle, who blanked the Astros the rest of the way for his 19th save of the season.

Mistakes doom Big Red

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Paul Wiggins feels his youthful Kansas City Chiefs are beginning to gel.

The St. Louis Cardinals' Don Coryell, however, may well have a stomach like Jello these days.

"I'm not saying we're a contender or anything," says Wiggins. "But we're doing things right and we're building things right here."

The Chiefs used a pair of third-quarter touchdowns passes by quarterback Gary Adams and opportunistic defensive play by cornerback Gary Green to build a 37-20 pre-season National Football League victory over the Cardinals Saturday night.

Kansas City, ending the exhibition campaign at 3-3, also reclaimed the Governors' Cup, the trophy that goes to the winner of this annual intra-state rivalry.

"We did the things that winners do...and we're really going to have to do that this year," said Wiggins, whose squad opens the regular season Sept. 18 against the New England Patriots.

Coryell openly admitted apprehension concerning his team after the Cardinals dominated every offensive category against the Chiefs but dropped their fifth exhibition loss in six games.

"We just have to stop beating ourselves and start beating the other team," Coryell sighed. "A 1-5 pre-season record is a very sobering thought. We made a lot of yards, but not enough points."

St. Louis rolled up 424 yards total offense to Kansas City's 276, had 30 first downs to the Chiefs' 13 and had the ball for nearly 43 of the game's 60 minutes.

But the Cardinals also watched Green, a rookie from Baylor, return a Jim Hart interception 81 yards for a touchdown, block a Jim Bakken field goal try and knock down a Bakken extra point effort. In addition, the Chiefs turned a pair of first-half St. Louis fumbles into Jan Stenerud field goals of 49 and 27 yards.

Kansas City constructed a 13-7 halftime lead as Tony Reed preceded Stenerud's boots with a three-yard run. Adams, taking over for Mike Livingston sandwiched a 14-yard touch-down to Henry Marshall and a 63-yard bomb to Walter White around a one-yard St.

Louis scoring run by Jim Otis to make it 27-13 and the Chiefs were never threatened after that.

St. Louis' Jerry Latin, who scored from 10 yards out in the opening quarter, followed Green's touchdown run with a five-yard burst into the end zone, then Stenerud hit a 35-yard field goal to end the scoring.

JEFFERSON CITY — The Conservation Commission has divided the state into a northern and southern zone in setting the 1977 duck season. Hunting dates differ for the two zones.

Hunting dates for the north zone are October 25 to December 8. Boundaries of the zone are north of U.S. Highway 160 from the Kansas line to Springfield; north of U.S. Highway 60 from Springfield to junction with Missouri Highway 34; to Cape Girardeau.

Hunting in the southern zone will open November 15 and run through December 29. The zone is the remainder of Missouri south of the northern zone.

The point system has been retained for the 1977 season. Hunters may take ducks until the last duck they take carries their point total to or over 100 points. Shooting hours are one half hour before sunrise to sunset.

Canvasbacks count 100 points and the Mississippi River will be closed to canvasbacks and redhead hunting from Alton Dam north to the Iowa line. Mallard hens, wood ducks, black ducks, redheads and hooded mergansers each count 70 points. Pintail, gadwall, shoveler, scaup, mergansers except hooded, and all teal are 10 points each. Mallard drakes and all other ducks count 25 points.

Generally, the Canada goose season opens October 25 and runs through December 8, except that in the Swan Lake zone, there will be a 25,000 bird quota or 45 days, whichever comes first. Hunters in the Swan Lake and Montrose zones may take one Canada or two white-fronted geese daily or one of each. Possession is two Canadas and two white-fronted.

In the Lower Mississippi zone, the season opens December 7 and runs through January 20 with a daily limit of two Canada geese or two white-fronted geese or one of each. Possession limit is four Canadas and white-fronted in the aggregate, except

Luzinski campaigns for MVP

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The first unofficial ballot in what could be the closest contest ever for National League Most Valuable Player honors has been cast from a most unexpected source.

The Philadelphia Phillies' Greg Luzinski, who shuns publicity and usually speaks only when spoken to, has voted for Greg Luzinski.

"I'm not usually outspoken," said Luzinski Sunday in a masterpiece of understatement, "but I think I deserve it. I've had a hell of a season."

Luzinski's outburst resulted from a reporter prodding "The Bull" about the post season MVP voting. It came after his three-run home run in the fourth inning triggered a 6-5 victory for the Phillies over the St. Louis Cardinals.

The other likely candidates for the MVP award are Cincinnati's slugging George Foster, and Pittsburgh's giant Dave Parker. All have outstanding credentials, and the two writers from each league city who will vote are going to have to do some homework.

Luzinski, 26, has a .310 batting average, 36 homers and 120 RBI for the first place Phillies in the National League East. Foster is hitting .314 with 46 homers and 133 RBI for the second place Reds in the West. Parker leads the league with a .347 average and in hits with 200, and doubles, 42 for the second place Pirates in the East. Vern Rapp, manager of the Cardinals, said Luzinski has already proven he is the most valuable.

"My feeling is that the MVP has to come from a division winning team," Rapp said. "What Luzinski has done proves he is the most valuable."

Luzinski has hit nine homers and driven in 26 runs against St. Louis, which certainly has to color Rapp's opinion. But the Cardinals' manager bases his choice on a player leading a club to something. The Cardinals got a first inning 2-0 lead Sunday against Phillies' starter Jim Lonborg, who missed a start because of a sore shoulder. Lou Brock doubled and scored on Garry Templeton's triple. Templeton came home on an infield out.

The Phillies went ahead in the third when starter John Denny walked the bases loaded. Jay Johnstone sent one run home on a sacrifice fly, another scored on Garry Maddox's double, and a third run crossed on Bob Boone's sacrifice fly.

Hearne to speak on Canal

The Conservative Caucus will hold a conference of leaders from around the state of Missouri, Saturday, Sept. 17, at Le Chateau Restaurant, 10405 Clayton Road, St. Louis, just west of Lindguth Blvd. and

of the Free Congress, on "Congress", Howard Phillips, National Director of the Conservative Caucus, and Donna Hearne, Missouri Director on "The U.S. Canal at Panama".

Meetings such as this are being held in all fifty states in order to provide district leaders with information and suggestions that will help them organize a non-partisan independent caucus in every congressional district. Such organizations will give an effective voice to the conservative majority which, according to all polls and surveys, exists throughout the nation. Attendees will also receive up-to-date information on national, state and district affairs.

The CONSERVATIVE CAUCUS is a national organization of 250,000 members, and growing. About 6,000 of the members are in Missouri. As it grows in numbers and effectiveness, and organizes in each congressional district, the Caucus comes closer to its goal of "Conservative Dominance Over the Policies of the U.S. Congress" by 1980.

Anyone interested in attending should send $15.00 to The Conservative Caucus, 318 Clion Lane, St. Louis, Mo 63141 or call (314) 434-7028.

Comments invited on tomato juice

Carol Tucker Foreman, assistant secretary of Agriculture for food and consumer services, invited comments on proposed revision of the U.S. grade standards for canned tomato juice and puree. The proposals would allow the use of colorimeters (electric color meters) in evaluating the color of these products. Color is a major factor in determining the grades of manufactured tomato products.

Under the proposals any carefully calibrated and standardized electronic color meter system can be used if it has been approved by the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA). Officials of USDA's Food Safety and Quality Service (FSQS) said color may still be evaluated visually. Comments on the proposals will be accepted until Dec. 31. Written comments should be sent in duplicate to the Hearing Clerk, Rm. 1077-S, U.S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D.C. 20250, where they will be available for public inspection.

The Canners League of California requested the changes in the grade standards for the two products to permit the use of colorimeters. Colorimeters help minimize visual error caused by eye fatigue and eliminate the need for the precise lighting conditions that are essential for accurate visual evaluation of color.

The proposals are scheduled to appear in the Sept. 13 Federal Register. Copies of the proposed revisions may be obtained from the Fruit and Vegetable Quality Division, FSQS, USDA, Washington, D.C. 20250.

FSQS established grade standards and provides official grading services for many food products. Use of the grade standards or grading services is voluntary.

Inflation boosts cost

In bouquets, arrangements and bunches, Americans buy billions of flowers every year and the same inflation that has been eroding buying power in other areas has boosted the price of the blossoms.

Industry spokesmen blame higher fuel costs for much of the increase. Many flowers are grown in greenhouses and the natural gas to heat the greenhouses has risen in price. Labor, materials and shipping charges also are more expensive.

"Energy costs alone have tripled in the past three years," said Douglas Gordon of the Denver Wholesale Florist Co. which ships about 80 million carnations a year from Colorado - the nation's biggest carnation producer - to the rest of the country and overseas. Labor, fertilizer and pesticides also have gone up sharply, he said.

Preceptor chapter holds meeting

Dear Ann Landers

Romance ends with Buzzy's bite

Dear Ann Landers: My boyfriend, Buzzy, is a sweet guy, but now and then I see signs of a terrible temper.

Last Friday night when we were horsing around on the floor, I got a toe-hold on him. (I learned it from watching wrestling on TV.) I think he went a little crazy. Ann. The guy actually bit me on the hand. I don't mean just a nibble, I mean a real bite that broke the skin. When I saw the blood I nearly fainted.

Buzzy said he was sorry, that he lost his head, and promised never to do such a thing again. I forgave him. The next day my mother saw the toothmarks and asked what happened. I was going to put the blame on Tuffy (our dog), but decided I'd better tell the truth. When I told Mom Buzzy bit me she was horrified - said a human bite can be very dangerous. Is this true? So far I am O.K. Please tell me if Mom is right. - Nipped By Nick

Dear Nipped: Yes, she is right. You were lucky. Every human mouth is loaded with bacteria. You could have gotten a bad infection.

If that clown ever bites you again, wash the wound with soap and water, see a doctor promptly, and send Buzzy for a long walk on a short dock.

Dear Ann: I was ticked off by the letter from the office worker who complained because a personal letter was opened by someone in the mail room.

You can see from this stationery I am the president of a well-known company. I do not pay the mail room girl a salary to deliver personal letters to my employees. Nor do I pay my employees to read their personal mail on my time.

Moreover, my employees have no right to use my typewriters and writing paper to carry on personal correspondence.

I'll bet you'll hear a lot on this subject from bosses all over the country and they will all be on my side. - Third Eye

Dear Eye: You were right. I did - and they were. What's more, as an employer, I must say you have a point. Read on if you want to know what the postal authorities in Chicago had to say on the subject:

All mail addressed to a business (regardless of whether or not it is marked "personal") is delivered according to the instructions issued by the head of the business - unless it is registered mail.

If the boss says all mail delivered to the mail room is to be opened, so be it. "Personal And Confidential" has no legal significance. This does not mean, however, that the boss has the right to open letters addressed to others. The directive applies only to the letter-opener in the mail room.

Dear Ann Landers: In one of your replies recently you asked, "Where are the State Police?" Well, they were probably on the highway doing their job, but will all the "ratters" on C.B.'s they don't stand a chance of catching many speeders.

Those C.B.'ers are forever warning each other to look out for the "County Mountie", "City Kitty", "Smokey Bear" of "Picture Taker."

From the way you answered that letter, I have a hunch you are a good driver. And when you gave your handle as "Lincoln Land Annie Baby" I just knew you were a C.B.'er of long standing. How about the lowdown? - Green Eyed Luke From Creaky Canyon

Dear Creak: Wrong on both counts. I quit driving 20 years ago as my contribution to the pedestrians of Chicago. That "handle" was one I made up at the typewriter.

There is a big difference between cold and cool. Ann Landers shows you how to play it cool without freezing people out in her booklet, "Teen-Age Sex - Ten Ways to Cool It." Send 50 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Ill. 60611.

POLLY'S POINTERS

DEAR POLLY - My Pointer is for those who wear glasses with plastic frames. The frames tend to get a buildup of salt and oil so I use a piece of cotton cloth moistened with nail polish remover and rub quite hard until the white marks disappear and then a bit of extra rubbing makes them shine. (Polly's note - I dampened another piece of cotton with water to wipe away the remover and then rubbed mine to a shine.) Also, I think Juanita could remove the crayon marks from her doll's face with toothpaste and then go over it with a damp cloth. I have used this all over the house for such marks. SARA.

The Missouri Highway Patrol identified the victims, who were riding in the same car, as Clifton E. Woolfolk, 23, Steve Driskill and Bucky Brandt, both 21.

Three persons in the other car were hospitalized, two of them in serious condition.

Peggy A. Hulse, 20, of the Kansas City suburb of Shawnee Mission, was killed about 10:30 p.m. Sunday in a one-car accident on rain-slick I-70 near the downtown area of Kansas City. Her husband was in critical condition at a Kansas City hospital early today.

Killed in another accident Sunday was Leroy Huntley III, 22, Neosho, when his car failed to make a curve on old U.S. 60 east of Seneca and slammed into a tree.

Amos Bridges, 79, and his wife, Ruby, 72, Pomona, died Saturday in a head-on collision on U.S. 63 in southeast Missouri.

Tammy Royer, 18, Decatur, Ill., was killed Friday when a jeep carrying several young persons went out of control on a county road southeast of Fulton.

Memphis girl is Miss Black

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP)—Like the song she sang in the talent portion of the Miss Black America contest — Quincy Jones' "Everything Must Change" — the life of Claire Ford had changed Saturday.

The 18-year-old from Memphis, Tenn., was crowned Miss Black America Friday night, beating out 30 other contestants from the United States and Puerto Rico.

"It feels good when your prayers are answered," she said Saturday. "I prayed and it's great. I'm so excited."

The 5-foot-10, 135-pound teenager is the youngest of three children and wants to be a corporate lawyer.

The first thing she did after winning the crown and returning to her hotel room was to order a hamburger and french fries.

"I didn't eat anything all day because of the swim suit competition, but I'm ready now," explained the sophomore English major at Memphis State University.

In addition to a $10,000 cash prize, she will be given a screen test at Universal Pictures and NBC.

The pageant was televised for the first time.

First runner-up was Mary Bentley, 20, of Indianapolis, a telecommunications major at Indiana University.

Miss Black Ohio, Nina Maria Lucas of Dayton, was second runner-up. Third runner-up was Miss Black Nebraska, Johnndrea Whitmore, 20, of Omaha.

Dexter council changes public intoxication laws

DEXTER — The Dexter City Council, with two members absent, held a brief meeting Tuesday night, with topics ranging from drunk to payment of tax assessments.

The 21-minute meeting was held without aldermen Dale Pursell and Doran Vancil, both out of town.

Main discussion at the meeting concerned a change in state public intoxication laws, and the relation to city ordinances.

City Attorney Paul McGhee explained that the recently adjourned State Legislature passed a new state law making public intoxication a non-criminal offense.

McGhee said that change in state law meant that the city ordinances regarding public intoxication would have to be changed.

The City Attorney explained that under provisions of the new state law, simply being drunk in public, without breaking any other law, is no longer a criminal offense. Under the new law, those who are drunk in public should either be taken home or to a public treatment center or they may be placed in jail for up to 12 hours, if no charges are filed.

Mayor Willis Conner, terming the new law "silly," said "I want everybody to know that this change is not our idea, but comes down from the state."

Proponents of the new state law had said that alcoholic detention and treatment centers were better for alcoholics and drunks than jail sentences and fines.

McGhee asked that the city change its ordinances to reflect the new state laws, and the council agreed, on a 4-0 vote.

In other business, the council: — Approved a business license change for the Happy Hour bar, now owned by Bill and Mary Hutchcraft, with payment of a $122.50 license fee.

— Approved a liquor by the drink license for the Hickory House lounge, with payment of a $450 license fee.

— Appointed Gerald Beam to the Planning and Zoning Commission, replacing engineer Daryl Orr, who has moved outside the Dexter city limits.

The council agreed to appoint Beam to the commission, and named Orr to an advisory capacity with the Commission.

— Approved a resolution setting a public hearing on paying Rainey Street from Poplar to Hickory. The public hearing will be held at the next regular council session, Sept. 19.

— Agreed that residents on the Hickory Street sewer district can pay their tax assessments in installments, if they so desire.

— Approved August disbursements, totaling $152,572.58.

'Roots' gets 9 Emmys

LOS ANGELES (AP)—"Roots" gathered up nine Emmys in an awards show that made up for a four-month delay by being the longest in the 29-year history of the Television Academy.

The 12-hour miniseries seen on ABC last January won Emmys for best limited series, directing and writing, with acting awards going to Louis Gossett Jr., Edward Asner and Olivia Cole. The three remaining Emmys for "Roots" were in craft categories.

The Sunday night Emmy Awards Show on NBC, delayed four months by a squabble that split the National Academy of Television Arts and Sciences into an Eastern National Academy and a Hollywood Academy, ran a record 3½ hours. It was 40 minutes longer than the previous longest show last year.

"As long as we're running over, let's do it good," said Angie Dickinson, who was co-host with Robert Blake for the ceremonies at the state's Pasadena Civic Auditorium.

The Hollywood Academy handed out Emmys in 42 prime time categories, with 27 Emmys going to ABC, 21 to NBC, 17 to CBS and eight to PBS.

"Eleanor and Franklin: The White House Years," won seven awards and tied with "Sybil" for outstanding dramatic special.

"Sybil" won four awards, including an award to star Sally Field, who was named best actress in a drama special for her portrayal of a woman afflicted by multiple personalities.

Dick Van Dyke's variety series, "Van Dyke and Co.," canceled by NBC last year after 11 performances, won as best variety series. "The Barry Manilow Special" was named outstanding variety special.

"I'm a little angry at NBC for pre-empting us so many times," said Van Dyke. "We even got letters asking us if we were doing a special."

Ed Flanders was named outstanding lead actor in a dramatic special for his feisty portrayal of the president in "Harry S. Truman: Plain Speaking."

Beatrice Arthur, going into her sixth year as "Maude," won her first Emmy as best lead actress in a comedy series. Carroll O'Connor, whose Archie Bunker is Maude's conservative counterpart, was named best actor in a comedy series for "All in the Family."

The retiring "Mary Tyler Moore Show" bowed out after seven years by capturing the Emmy as best comedy series. Its writers also won award for her farewell performance, and the Academy paid a special tribute to the show in excerpts dating back to its beginning.

James Garner won an Emmy as best dramatic series actor for his private eye-on-wry in "The Rockford Files," and Lindsay Wagner as best actress in a dramatic series for "The Bionic Woman."

Once again, Britain's "Upstairs, Downstairs" walked away with the award for best dramatic series.

Christopher Plummer, playing a corrupt banker in "The Money Changers," took the Emmy for best lead actor in a limited series. Patty Duke Astin won as best lead actress for "Captains and the Kings."

Burgess Meredith, who played lawyer Joseph Welsh, was named best supporting actor in a special for "Tail Gunner Joe" about Sen. Joseph McCarthy.

Diana Hyland, who died of cancer this spring, was named outstanding supporting actress in a drama special for "The Boy in the Plastic Bubble." Her award was accepted in an emotional outpouring by John Travolta, her close friend who played her son in the movie.

Backstage, Meredith said he had been blacklisted during the Communist-hunting McCarthy era. "I was very glad when Joe Welsh came along," he said. "I was very glad that I got to play Joe Welsh."

Tim Conway was selected as the best supporting actor in a variety series for "The Carol Burnett Show," and Rita Moreno was named best supporting actress in a variety show for an appearance on "The Muppet Show."

Beulah Bondi won as best actress in a single appearance for a part on "The Waltons." Louis Gossett Jr. was named best actor for an appearance in a series for part two of "Roots."

Gary Burghoff won as best supporting actor in a comedy series for "M-A-S-H," and Mary Kay Place won for "Mary Hartman, Mary Hartman."

For dramatic series, Gary Frank won as best supporting actor for "Family," and Kristy McNichol, also seen on "Family," won an Emmy as best supporting actress on her 15th birthday.

Other "Roots" winners included Edward Asner as outstanding supporting actor in a single appearance in a series for the opening episode of "Roots." Olivia Cole won as best supporting actress in a single performance in a series for the eighth and final chapter of "Roots."

Our Oil Bill

A decade ago, the United States imported virtually no oil. Today the country imports 40 per cent. An analysis in "Across the Board," The Conference Board's monthly magazine, notes the current price of $14 a barrel for oil is up from $1 in 1960. Total bill for imported oil leaped from $3 billion in 1971 to $27 billion in 1975 and to $34 billion in 1976. It will soar beyond $40 billion in 1977.

From The Living Bible

Our glory is gone. The crown is fallen from our head. Woe upon us for our sins. Our hearts are faint and weary; our eyes grow dim. Jerusalem is desolate, deserted by all but wild animals lurking in the ruins. O Lord, forever you remain the same! Your throne continues from generation to generation. Why do you forget us forever? Why do you forsake us for so long? Turn us around and bring us back to you again! That is our only hope! Give us back the joys we used to have!

New plan differs little from first

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — The new Israeli peace plan which Prime Minister Menachem Begin's government is sending to the United States next week apparently differs little in its major provisions from what the previous Labor governments were prepared to offer.

Begin's cabinet at its weekly meeting Sunday approved the proposed peace treaty Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan will take to Washington and the U.N. General Assembly. Officially, the details were secret, but the major provisions have been leaked, and the Arabs have already rejected them.

Israel's territorial demands — the key issue as far as the Arabs are concerned — are not outlined in the draft treaty but are contained in an accompanying letter which Dayan will deliver to President Carter and Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance.

"The letter spells out general principles, most of which the Americans already know," a Foreign Ministry official said. "For example the problems of security, of defense of the sources of the Jordan River or of freedom of navigation through the Gulf of Eilat."

In terms of the territory occupied in the 1967 Arab-Israeli War, this mean retention of a strong position on the Golan Heights, overlooking the upper Jordan River and the Sea of Galilee, and along the east coast of the Sinai peninsula commanding the approach to Eilat, Israel's southern port.

For the West Bank of the Jordan River, the new draft adopts the Labor government's plan for a string of Israeli military positions along the river. The plan abandons the previous governments' vague offers to return part of the West Bank to Jordan in exchange for a peace treaty. Instead the new draft would continue the present system of Jordanian, Israeli and local control, formalize it in the peace treaty and provide for a sharing of government services to be negotiated by Israel and Jordan.

Dayan is scheduled to arrive in Washington Sept. 19 to discuss the plan with Carter and Vance. Vance is to transmit the Israeli proposals to the foreign ministers of Egypt, Jordan and Syria when he meets them later in the week at the start of the General Assembly in New York.

Rejecting the Israeli proposals, a senior official of the Egyptian Foreign Ministry said Sunday they "show Begin's government has no serious intention of settling the Middle East conflict peacefully."

"The ideas it contains are obsolete," another Egyptian official said. The two officials repeated the Arabs' basic demands — for Israeli withdrawal from all territory taken in the 1967 war and for a homeland for the Palestinians who fled from Israel when it became a state in 1948.

The comptroller of the currency's report was shown on Saturday to members and staff employees of the Senate committee, which last week began hearings to look into questionable practices allegedly used by Lance while he headed the National Bank of Georgia and the Calhoun (Ga.) First National Bank.

Quoting sources said to have seen parts of the comptroller's report, the Post said the controls the banks used to keep track of the airplanes used by Lance were so loose that even the pilot was able to take personal trips in the aircraft.

The Post said Lance asserted in the report that the trips he took in the planes were business-related and therefore properly charged to the banks.

Lloyd said Bolin gave no reasons to the city for his action and that he did not submit a letter of resignation.

Bolin had been water superintendent for the past 10 years. Before that his dad, Albert Bolin, was water superintendent.

Bolin was not available for comment this morning, but a member of his family suggested it was due to disagreement with a member of the City Council.

The resignation left only Crowe in the water department to cope with the crisis. He has been helped by Lloyd.

Matters were already bad enough, but to further complicate the situation, pump number six broke down Sunday afternoon.

Lloyd said it is still not certain what the problem is. He called the Singer Co. Sunday night, but was told that a crew could not be gotten together and to Bloomfield that night, but that they planned to bring the repaired pump back today and then they could look at pump number six.

Hopefully, they will put pump number seven back in, get it working and then examine pump number six and see what the problem is.

Lloyd quoted Crowe as estimating that it would take at least four to five hours to get pump number seven working, but there is no telling how long it will take to get pump number six back in working order.

If the trips were not business-related, Lance could be in violation of securities and tax laws.

Meanwhile, a Newsweek + Gallup special telephone survey of 501 persons last Thursday showed 54 per cent think Carter has tried too hard to protect Lance, a long-time personal friend.

Midge Costanza, special presidential assistant for public liaison, said in Rochester, N.Y., on Saturday that Lance should resign "to relieve the President of this burden."

And Senate Majority Leader Robert Byrd of West Virginia said Saturday that Lance's resignation is inevitable because his effectiveness and credibility have been destroyed.

The only pump remaining in working order is now pumping only 50 gallons per minute, or about 3,000 gallons per hour. As a comparison, Lloyd pointed out that from 7 a.m. Saturday to 7 a.m. Sunday an average 11,345 gallons per hour was used.

In case of a fire, Lloyd said, the remaining pump could supply enough water to bring it under control. Water is available for no other purpose, however, during the shortage.

If the shortage continues, could it hurt the planned Bloomfield homecoming, scheduled to start tonight?

Lloyd thinks not, since only one attraction needs water and "we can get by without that."

He was speaking of the dunking booth. Citizens are apparently taking the shortage in good humor.

Lloyd said this morning he had received only a few complaints from citizens about the situation.

There are also the usual jokes about "selling water for $10 a gallon," Lloyd said.

It is a serious problem, "you can hardly do without water," Lloyd said, then jokingly asked, "What are you going to do? Pray for rain."

Then, as an afterthought, "But that won't help, either."

Senate to consider against gas guzzlers

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate is ready to take on inefficient, fuel-hungry automobiles as it considers legislation that would prohibit automakers from building any more "gas guzzlers."

A ban on cars that get less than 16 miles per gallon beginning in 1980 and increasing to 21 miles per gallon by 1985 is part of an energy conservation bill scheduled for Senate action today.

The Senate will spend most of the week on energy legislation, playing a game of catch-up with the House, which passed its version of President Carter's energy program early last month.

After disposing of a number of minor bills today, the House will turn its attention on Tuesday to legislation to raise the $2.30-per-hour minimum wage to $2.65, effective Jan. 1.

And the financial troubles of President Carter's budget director, Bert Lance, will continue to command congressional attention this week. Lance goes before the Senate Governmental Affairs Committee on Thursday to defend his transactions as a Georgia banker, before he joined the administration.

Both the chairman and ranking minority member of that panel — Sens. Abraham Ribicoff, D-Conn., and Charles Percy, R-Ill. — have already recommended that Lance resign.

A gas-guzzler tax, along with other tax aspects of the administration's energy plan — including a wellhead tax on oil and new taxes on industrial use of oil and natural gas — are before the Senate Finance Committee, expected to begin taking votes this week.

And a deeply divided Senate Energy Committee will try again today to act on President Carter's natural gas pricing plan. Carter wants to continue price controls on natural gas, but at higher levels. But as of late last week, the panel was said to be divided 9-9 between that plan and a rival one, backed by the industry, calling for lifting the price controls entirely.

Senate Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va., said the natural gas bill will be taken up by the Senate as soon as the measure comes out of the committee. If necessary, he said, the full chamber may be called on to resolve the gas pricing dispute.

In other congressional action, a House Ways and Means subcommittee scheduled work today on President Carter's proposals for overhauling the nation's troubled Social Security system.

And a House-Senate conference committee is working on the $460 billion federal budget bills for fiscal year 1978, passed in slightly different forms by each chamber. Leaders are hopeful the legislation will be ready for final congressional action by Thursday.

Suitcase, batteries are stolen

A suitcase and batteries were taken in separate thefts, according to the Public Safety Department.

The suitcase was taken from a car belonging to Doyal Morgan, 310 S. Kingshighway, while it was parked at the El Capri Motel. The theft occurred about 4:30 p.m. Friday.

The suitcase was valued at $50 and contained $48 in cash and personal items.

Two 12-volt batteries valued at $80 were taken from two cars parked at West Side Shell service station, 903 W. Malone Ave., between 8 p.m. Saturday and 7 a.m. Sunday.

Wilson convicted

BLOOMFIELD — A Stoddard County Jury Friday night found a 28-year-old rural Senath man guilty of manslaughter and leaving the scene of a traffic accident in connection with the April death of a Botheel youth.

The jury sentenced Lester Wilson, 28, of Senath, Route One, to three months in the Dunklin County Jail on the manslaughter conviction and levied a $500 fine. They also fined the defendant $100 on a leaving the scene of an accident conviction.

They acquitted Wilson, however, on a driving while intoxicated charge after the day-long case, heard on a change of venue from Dunklin County.

Wilson was allowed to remain free on his original bond pending a decision on filing an appeal.

The charges against Wilson stemmed from an April 4 accident on Township Line Road four miles north of Hornersville.

Troopers investigating the case said Wilson was westbound on the wrong side of the dirt road in a pickup truck. Two officers alleged the truck struck and killed 16-year-old Robert D. Thomason, of Senath, Route One, knocking him 90 feet from where he was walking.

Witnesses said the driver of the truck stopped, got out of his vehicle, then got back in and drove away at high speed.

Wilson was arrested later that night by Trooper J.M. Pemberton.

Judge Stanley Grimm of Cape Girardeau's 32nd Judicial Circuit presided over the case after disqualification earlier of Judge Flake McHaney from Dunklin County.

Catholic leaders to meet and discuss human rights

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter is meeting with Catholic leaders who want to know specifically what his human rights crusade will mean in the practice of foreign policy.

The session today in the Oval Office at the White House was arranged at the request of Archbishop Joseph L. Bernardin, president of the National Conference of Catholic Bishops, and Bishop Thomas Kelly, general secretary of the U.S. Catholic Conference.

Both are in general support of Carter's human rights stand as well as the general outline of his new Panama Canal treaty. They said through spokesman Russ Shaw they also appreciate Carter's ban on federal funding for most abortions.

The Department of Health, Education and Welfare has stopped funding for all abortions except those performed to save a mother's life.

Catholic bishops want a constitutional amendment to an abortions altogether. During his campaign last year, Carter told the Catholic clergy he is personally opposed to abortions, but he declined to endorse his proposed amendment.

On human rights, Shaw said, "the President's commitment is very much in line with what we have been saying for a long time." Therefore, he said, the bishops are "supportive in a general way."

"But we, like a lot of people, are still in the dark about the specifics of it — what the President's human rights policy will mean in practice," Shaw said.

Carter got a cheering, whistling reception Saturday from 15,000 Italian-Americans in a predominantly Catholic neighborhood in Trenton, N.J., during his first campaign trip as President. He spent the day stumping for incumbent Gov. Brendan Byrne.

Carter's welcome in the Chambersburg district of Trenton followed boing from state income tax protesters in a crowd of 3,500 at a predominantly black medical school in Newark, N.J.

Carter got a boost over the weekend from the Gallup Poll, which said 66 per cent of the Americans it surveyed approve of his performance. That's a drop of only one percentage point since April. It contrasts to a 17 point drop in the Harris Survey since April.

But a Newsweek-Gallup survey showed 54 per cent of the respondents to a special telephone poll of 501 persons last Thursday night believe Carter has tried to protect Budget Director Bert Lance too much.

A THOUGHT TO REMEMBER

RAYMOND CREWS

In a group discussion not too long ago, it was asked why people curse in conversation. It was noted with amazement that some cursers are successful, brilliant men, capable of good speech. Cussing is a habit one acquires to add impact to words. Those who lack language with profanity do it because they fear normal expression lacks strength to put a point across. There is no question that the cussing habit can be broken.

One man in the group told an interesting story. He related how, years ago, his three year old boy stumbled and stubbed his toe. The child let out with an explosive barrage of cussing which shocked his mother and dad. Before they could say anything, the child shyly sensed their shock. In the quick of a wink, he changed from sinner to saint and started to sing, "Jesus loves me, this I know, for the Bible tells me so." The fellow told how he and his wife, while shocked, had to inwardly chuckle over the surprisingly quick transition of the little rascal. Since habits are mostly formed by association or example, especially with impressionable youngsters, both parents decided then and there to never use even mild profanity ever again.

The son is now a grown man. He is a fine person and an interesting conversationalist. His parents are too.

Supreme court okays city power plant

The Missouri Supreme Court has upheld Sikeston's plans to build a 235-megawatt power plant and sell the power to 11 other communities.

The court's decision, handed down this morning, was announced during a press conference at the Board of Municipal Utilities building, 138 N. Prairie St.

The court upheld Sikeston on all the points raised in a lawsuit brought by Charles Mitchell of Sikeston and Don Diven of Trenton, later joined by Arkansas-Missouri Power Co.

The court said Sikeston is authorized under state law to build the power plant and sell excess power to other communities, according to Manuel Drumm, the former city attorney who represented the city.

The court said the sales contracts with the cities are proper and that Trenton and the other 10 towns may buy Sikeston's excess power.

That was the key to the power plant plans. Those cities will help pay for the plant. They will drop off the power grid over the years until about the year 2000, when Sikeston will be using the plant's full output.

The Court also said Sikeston's revenue bond plans are satisfactory and that the coal reserves can be funded with the revenue bonds.

Drumm said that while three and a half months seems a long time for the court to take to rule, it was "almost a world's record."

It seemed long to us, he said, but is was expeditious for them.

The ruling means that Sikeston can now move ahead on the project, which has been stalled by the wait for the court's decision.

Drumm said the city may be able to issue the bonds within 90 days, but that decision depends on the bonding attorneys.

The coal contract with Western Fuels, Inc., can be signed soon, but some details remain to be negotiated.

E. R. "Dick" Inman, director of the Board of Municipal Utilities, said plans call for site work to begin later this year or early in 1978. He said he was "elated" by the court's decision.

Board Chairman William Bess said the plant will ensure Sikeston of a power supply in the future when there will be shortages all over the United States.

He added that the board had already spent $400,000 on the project and if the court had ruled against the project, the board

"would have had some things to answer for."

The new power plant will be a massive addition to the city's skyline, towering 210 feet high, 10 feet higher than the present steam plant's smokestack.

The new smoke stack will be 450 feet high. The structure will be located on 455 acres of land in north of Compress Road, west of the present plant. The coal reserve will hold 600,000 tons of coal in an 18-acre pile.

The board has done something no one else has done or even attempted, City Councilman Steve Sikes said, adding the project is so large its hard to comprehend.

Former City Manager W. Raymott Miller said most people do not really understand the importance of the new plant. He said in a short time Sikeston will become known as one of the most progressive cities in the state.

State Sen. John Dennis, Democrat of Benton, whose power pooling legislation was important to the city's plans, said the voters showed confidence in the city leadership when they passed the massive bond issue.

The new power plant now puts a burden on the City Council to provide services for the people and industry the power plant will bring to Sikeston, according to Bill Wellborn, executive secretary of the Sikeston Area Chamber of Commerce.

Unless Sikeston can provide the services, such as water and sewer that the influx will demand, the city will not fully realize the new plant's benefits, he said.

The power plant will create 375 jobs at the peak of construction in 1978-79. An additional 40-45 employees will have to be hired to run the plant once it is finished.

Bess said the board "owes so much to so many people." He said no one really opposed the project.

The lawsuit by Mitchell and Diven was a "friendly lawsuit," although those involved in the case would not use that term for publication, and was designed to ensure the legality of Sikeston's plans.

Councilman Roger Tolliver said the board should be congratulated for the work it has put into the project.

Mayor Eric Piel said Drumm should receive a lot of credit for the court's decision and that a large amount of legal work went into today's ruling.

Councilwoman Mary Doggett said the project was "a real plus for the city."

Justice Department has new report on Lance

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Justice Department's criminal fraud division is studying a new report by the comptroller of the currency which reportedly shows that Bert Lance widely used bank-owned aircraft for family and political purposes.

A spokesman for the Justice Department confirmed Sunday that the division had received the study. But he said its referral was routine and did not necessarily indicate there would be any prosecution.

President Carter, meanwhile, was said to be considering the postponement until next week of a news conference which almost certainly would be focused on the financial affairs of his budget director, including the question of whether Lance should resign.

Press Secretary Jody Powell said today no final decision has been made on whether to put off the session, originally scheduled for Wednesday. But he indicated the President may want to wait until Lance completes his testimony scheduled to begin Thursday before the Senate Government Affairs Committee.

In Lance's native Georgia, the president-elect of the American Bankers Association said today that the Lance affair "is casting a pall over the banking industry ... it may give banking a black eye if it goes unchallenged."

A. A. Mulligan, in a speech prepared for the National Bank Card Convention in Atlanta, said he doesn't know if Lance actually has done anything wrong, but some of the alleged activities "are clearly not typical of banks in this country."

"I see red whenever I hear anyone dismiss the allegations about overdrafts and improper disclosure about loans as being 'just typical business practices,'" Mulligan said.

While confirming the existence of the comptroller's report, the Justice Department spokesman refused to discuss the contents.

But the Washington Post said in today's editions that the report says Lance, who heads the Office of Management and Budget, used two planes owned by the Georgia banks he headed to take personal vacations, to fly his children to school, to commute and to take part in politics.

The report came amid new suggestions that Lance resign to avoid embarrassment to Carter and as the Senate committee prepared for its second week of hearings. See No. 1 Page 10

Court strikes down government immunity

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The Missouri Supreme Court today ruled city, county and state governments in Missouri could be sued by citizens for damages.

The state's highest court struck down the theory of "sovereign immunity," thus making all governmental units in the state liable for damages caused by them or their employees.

The doctrine goes back to old English Common law, which said the king could do no wrong and also has been a part of the American legal system for years. However, over the past few decades most states have either modified or abolished the doctrine, so people could sue government just as they would be able to sue private companies.

The court had considered four cases involving suits against governmental units, but the 6-1 ruling came on a case involving a woman who had sued the state Highway Commission for damages she suffered when her car went out of control on Highway 71 in Jackson County. Although the trial court had dismissed her claim, based on the sovereign immunity theory, the case eventually went to the State Supreme Court.

"We have considered the justification for the continued validity of the doctrine and find them illogical and unconvincing," said Judge Robert Seiler, writing the high court's opinion.

Judge Robert Donnelly dissented from the decision. He said the Missouri Legislature, not the courts, should make the final determination on governmental immunity.

In its ruling the court noted over the last 30 years there had been wide acceptance in other state of the position that governments should be liable for damages, whether the change had come from the legislatures or the courts.

One of the reasons usually cited to support continuing governmental immunity was that the financial stability of the government would be threatened if the people were allowed to sue.

But the high court said there was no evidence to demonstrate that removing the doctrine of sovereign immunity would "substantially impair the financial stability of government" to the extent the operation of government would be impaired.

The court also said the argument suits against government hurt the people as a whole had "lost all forcefulness today since governmental units have a corporate or quasi-corporate status."

The court's ruling means that county, city and state government facilities and institutions will be liable for damages as is private businesses.

Smiths free on $5,000 bond each

BENTON — Brenda and Charles David Smith of Illinois were released Saturday evening from Scott County Jail on $5,000 bond each, to appear before Magistrate Judge Lloyd G. Briggs Wednesday on charges of mistreatment of a child.

The charges were filed by Scott County prosecuting attorney David Shy, and the couple was arrested, Saturday, following a coroner's inquest, which established pneumonia as the cause of the Sept. 3, death of their 10-month old daughter Amanda Sue Haynes.

A headline in the Sunday edition of the Daily Standard incorrect in stating the couple was charged in the death of the infant. The coroner's jury determined that the cause of death was from the pneumonia. In an additional statement in the verdict, the six jurors said they felt with proper medical attention, the child would probably have survived, but they did not name the parents as being directly responsible in the death.

Power plant ruling explained

Bloomfield water shortage has town dry and residents thirsty

By FRANK WATSON

BLOOMFIELD — Bloomfield citizens this morning are without water, causing the closing of Bloomfield public schools, Tucker's Cafe car wash and laundromats and the partial closing of Elder Manufacturing Co. plant.

Two of the three pumps used by the city are now out of order, but it is still hoped that water can again be supplied to the city by 6 p.m. today.

The water has been off since 5 p.m. Sunday.

"I'm thirsty," City Clerk Joe Lloyd joked this morning when asked about the situation, but then explained that he and acting water superintendent Terry Crowe had been out checking the lines for breaks and the lift station.

Everything looks in fine shape, he said, except for the pumps.

The water shortage problem started over a week ago, when a small fuse blew at the water plant on Sept. 3 stopping the pumps but not sounding an alarm.

The fuse was easily replaced, but the next day water pump number seven broke when a casing split in the well. A relief valve was used and the problem was brought under control.

That pump worked, but not up to its usual capacity. The pump pulled the water up, but when it hit the break it seeped back into the well so the full amount of water was not getting into the line.

It was providing about 180 gallons per minute (GPM) when the city required 200 GPM to meet its needs.

On Tuesday, the Singer Co. of Stuttgart, Ark. arrived at the scene and pulled the faulty pump, taking it back to Stuttgart for repairs.

Plans were to return the pump today. The crew had not arrived from Arkansas this morning, but were expected by about 12:30 p.m.

During the week, citizens were asked to conserve water to get through the crisis. On Thursday afternoon Water Superintendent Scott Bolin resigned.

Youth back in jail after brief freedom

Louis Wiggins, 18 of 1508 W. North St., was in city jail this morning after he escaped custody about 5:40 p.m. Saturday, according to the Public Safety Department.

Wiggins and another youth had been picked up earlier for taking a truck without the owner's permission. The owner decided not to prosecute.

During the arrest, Wiggins allegedly became abusive, struggled with officers and was jailed. About at 5:40 p.m. he was taken out of the cell to make a telephone call and when the officer turned his back, Wiggins allegedly ran out of the Public Safety Department.

He was recaptured a short time later at the corner of West North and Young streets by Sgt. Anderson Walker.

Wiggins bit Walker on the chest and the officer had to seek treatment in the emergency room of Missouri Delta Community Hospital. Wiggins is charged with peace disturbance, destroying city property, assaulting a police officer and resisting arrest.

Delta Center Field Day Set

Chuck Cromwell, left superintendent of the University of Missouri-Columbia's Delta Center, and Kenneth Heath, East Prairie farmer and president of UMC College of Agriculture Alumni Association, inspect sorghum at the Delta Center. Results of yield trials on sorghum and other crops will be reported at the Delta Center Field Day, Sept. 23. Cromwell and Heath say crops look especially good at the Center this year.

EP man seriously hurt in wreck

An East Prairie man was seriously injured today and five persons received minor injuries Sunday, in three accidents on area roads, the highway patrol reported today.

An accident at 7:40 a.m. today on Route Y, three miles north of Wyatt in Mississippi County caused serious injuries to Larry Keith Baker, 20, of East Prairie.

Baker, driver of a northbound tractor-trailer unit loaded with shelled corn, apparently came around a curve too fast, causing him to lose control. The trailer skidded off the road and the entire vehicle overturned.

Baker was taken to Missouri Delta Community Hospital.

Three Fredericktown teen-agers were injured in a single-vehicle accident at 5:30 a.m. Sunday on East Castor River Road, six miles east of Fredericktown.

The patrol said a car driven east by Brenda G. Stacy, 16, of Fredericktown met another vehicle on a curve, then ran off the road, struck a large rock and a tree.

The driver and two passengers, Warren S. Stephens, 15, and William D. Porter, 17, of Fredericktown were taken to Madison County Hospital in Fredericktown for treatment of minor injuries.

A Doniphan man, Dee Aubra Rice, 77, received minor injuries in a one-car accident at 12:25 p.m. Sunday on Route 160, 14 miles west of Poplar Bluff in Butler County.

The patrol said a car driven west by Rice rounded a curve too fast, causing Rice to lose control. The car struck a bridge and caught fire. Rice was taken to Ripley County Hospital in Doniphan.

An accident at 6:35 p.m. Sunday on Highway 67, 12 miles north of Poplar Bluff, caused minor injuries to Robert Lee Allen, 22, of Poplar Bluff.

The patrol said Allen, who was traveling north, attempted to pass an unidentified vehicle at a marked intersection as the unknown vehicle was attempting to make a left turn. Allen's car ran off the road, struck an embankment and overturned. He was taken to Veterans Administration Hospital at Poplar Bluff.

CARTER CRACKING WHIP ON DEMO ENERGY PLAN

According to reports, Jimmy Carter is displeased with the American people. Even though he announced last April that the energy crisis was the moral equivalent of war, the troops don't seem very interested in the battle. Why, they're even using and importing more oil, which forced our Commander-in-Chief to get a little sterner. The "public is not paying attention," he told a group of editors in a White House interview. "I think voluntary compliance is probably not adequate at all." He was even blunter about those guessing the battle plan — the National Energy Act of 1977. The deregulation of natural gas and oil, favored by the energy industry, would not mean "substantially increased exploration," only "a great windfall to the oil and natural gas companies of our nation." George McGovern couldn't have said it better, and already had.

Whatever grievances Carter has toward the public, he can have no ill will toward his Democratic Congress. Courtesy of the House and Senate, he now has his Department of Energy which, with its payroll of twenty thousand and budget for the coming fiscal year of $10.6 billion, may not be capable of locating a pint more oil but will perform the valuable service to persuading the bureaucrats in Mr. Carter's constituency that he does indeed consider the energy crisis a grave national issue. As for individual congressional heroes, House Majority Leader Tip O'Neill packed the Ad Hoc Energy Committee with those who think the solution to the energy crisis lies in Washington. So quickly was the Carter energy package rammed through, the Committee's GOP minority didn't even have a chance to offer its own energy program.

Democratic power plays and presidential harangues wouldn't be necessary, of course, if the public were not so suspicious of the energy crisis and the Administration's solution. Recent studies show that the public's suspicion is well grounded. One of these, by the government's own Energy Research and Development Administration, so displeased Mr. Carter that he ordered the offending officials back to the drawing boards. ERDA came up with estimates that at $2.25, and provided "exotic" sources are brought into production, the nation would soon be glutted with natural gas.

The question is, Why is Carter so alarmed? Why is he trying to alarm everybody else?

GIVE US BACK OUR POLICE

They sat in the dusk with candles under a grape arbor in the small, neat back yard and listened quietly to one another. Just over the fence, a small group of black and white children, playing together, moved down the concrete alley.

The tales were not of places they had been and things they had done. They were serious, hushed, flat-toned tales of murder in the neighborhood, of a shooting and of theft.

It was a Denver backyard, but it could be anywhere in our big cities. All of us know the undercurrent of alarm, the same sense of helpless resignation and danger that such talk stirs. It cries out for the police to cure. But they seem tragically unable to solve it.

More police patrols? Well, a few more cars can swing through. It's a big city, though, and after a few nights of driving through, perhaps stopping a kid or two, the police move on to another park of their precinct where things are stirring.

There is no one we can turn to, really, no one we know.

The men and women in those police cars are strangers to us, now, people we only meet when we are snarling mad over a traffic ticket or in shock over a crime.

Their work pattern breaks their living style into shifts of mornings, afternoons and midnights. So we seldom see them, even if they live down the street. They become friends with one another, like newspaper reporters who often find the company of outsiders boring and flat.

Little by little they have been withdrawn from the neighborhoods they are supposed to protect. The automobile has taken them away from the sidewalks. The two-man patrolling has given them a partner instead of relying on friends in the homes and businesses around them.

The police car gives immense mobility. But it also makes the police remote and anonymous and spreads them too thin.

Most neighborhood crimes are local — not some known and clever felon playing the rooftops for treasure but simply wayward children of a failed family. Know the neighborhood and you know the troublemakers. Ride in a car and how can you know the neighborhood?

In some cities, police are instructed to control any situation they find on the street. This make them aggressive and hostile, unwilling to tolerate any backtalk. They are dealing with a generation of young people who feel driven to speak up for their rights. The combination is explosive.

For a policeman, the stress is heavy and he pays a terrible toll in suicide, illness, stomach trouble and divorce.

Perhaps, then, it is time to re-think the deployment of police. Perhaps it is time to break off the military-like training, to downplay the scout cars and begin to buy policemen homes in the neighborhoods at city expense. Install them and their families in every section of town. Give them the neighborhood as their own turf. Let them work the hours they need to among people they know who look to them for help. The man who knows the neighborhood can deal with its problems with skill and understanding.

City hall, give us back our policemen again. We need them.

And then, in those moments around dusk, when tales of crime seem to spin us deep in a morbid spiral of fear, we will have someone to call who can help us.

"Hey, fella. Can you spare a little change?"

KELLEY SAYS JUSTICE DEPT. HOBLES FBI INVESTIGATION
Recently FBI Director Clarence Kelley spoke out about the Soviet Union conducting a massive espionage offensive against the United States, and that a substantial number of Communist-bloc officials stationed here are engaged in illegal intelligence operations.

"Their targets," Kelley said, "are virtually all-encompassing, including our political, economic, agricultural, military, scientific and technical resources."

In a speech directed more to President Carter and Atty. Gen. Griffin Bell than to his Kansas City audience, Kelley warned that the "level of the threat currently posed" by foreign espionage agents means that the FBI "will have to be that much more diligent in ensuring that we will fulfill our obligations to the American people."

The FBI's problem is compounded, Kelley said, by an "ever-increasing influx of Communist-bloc officials" — a "substantial number" of whom are engaged in espionage. Kelley ticked off the statistics: —In the last 10 years, the number of Soviet-bloc officials in the United States has more than doubled, from 806 in 1966 to 1,995 ten years later.

—In the last two years, the number of Soviet officials alone has increased 20 per cent. —Since 1973, the number of Soviets entering the United States under assorted "cultural exchange agreements" has increased more than 100 per cent. More than 5,000 Soviet visitors — students, scientists, journalists — are entering the U.S. each year and many are known to be engaged in intelligence operations.

Only last month, the FBI broke up two major Soviet spy projects. In New Jersey, agents arrested a Russian immigrant who was charged with attempting to obtain classified documents relating to a satellite communications project at the RCA Space Center in Princeton. The plans were to be delivered to the second secretary of the Soviet United Nations Mission and he was named as a co-conspirator.

In California, an American with top-secret security clearance was charged with passing military secrets to a colleague who in turn sold it to the Soviets. A "science attaché" at the Soviet Embassy in Mexico City was named as a co-conspirator.

There was other disquieting news from Kelley. Domestic security investigations by the bureau have been drastically reduced. Such probes must now be "tied as clearly as possible to criminal statutes and are in accordance with new guidelines drawn up by the attorney general."

So domestic security cases were slashed from 21,414 in July 1973 to 4,868 in March 1976. And Kelley said the bureau is handling "even fewer cases now."

Top-level Justice Department officials said that FBI probes into potentially violent groups have almost come to a standstill. Explained Kelley: "Under guidelines (drafted by former Atty. Gen. Edward Levi) we have got to be able to prove that a crime is about to take place before we can act. What this means, quite simply, is that we have no intelligence in the area of potential domestic subversion."

This is straight-talk that the American people need, and not the double-talk of politicians in Washington.

Two kinds of families have antique furniture: those with lots of money and those with lots of children.

CONTROLLING PLUTONIUM PRODUCTION
From The Los Angeles Times

There are encouraging signs of progress in President Carter's campaign to persuade other nations to join the United States in avoiding the production of plutonium for use in nuclear power reactors. If the Carter policy is to succeed, however, this country must come up with a credible plan for bringing reactor fuel supplies under international ownership and control.

Plutonium, when separated from spent fuel elements, can be reused to help fuel conventional power reactors of the sort already in widespread use. Plutonium-burning fast-breeder reactors, still in the development stage, may actually be able to produce more fuel than they consume.

These are attractive characteristics—especially to nations that depend heavily on outside sources for both oil and uranium. Unfortunately, however, plutonium can also be used to make nuclear weapons—and no foreseeable system of international inspection can prevent such diversions.

So the United States has sought to dissuade France and West Germany from going through with prospective exports of plutonium separation plants to nations that do not have nuclear weapons.

In addition, Carter announced in April that the United States would forego completion of a separation facility, and would not go forward with a breeder-reactor demonstration project. Other governments, however, have strongly resisted his proposal that they emulate the American example.

But the Carter cause is far from hopeless. Although unwilling to announce it officially, the French government is holding back delivery of blueprints for construction of a spent-fuel reprocessing plant in Pakistan. This adds to the pressure on West Germany to step back from its even larger sale of sensitive technology to Brazil.

The Carter policy has stimulated public debates on the pros and cons of plutonium-burning power reactors all over Europe — and forced the governments in question to move cautiously.

London has decided to hold off plans to build a plutonium-burning breeder reactor until the ramifications can be studied thoroughly. The West German government has been obliged to announce that it is not committed irrevocably to the use of plutonium as reactor fuel, that alternative technologies are being explored.

If the Carter plan is to succeed, however, the Japanese and Europeans must be assured that, if they go along with Washington and forego the separation and use of plutonium, they will have dependable supplies of conventional uranium reactor fuel at prices that their economies can afford. And this requires nothing less than the internationalization of the supply end.

NO IMMUNITY FOR ANYONE

Recently a state legislator was stopped by officers and refused to take a breathalyzer test to determine whether or not he was guilty of driving while intoxicated. He claimed immunity because he is a legislator. Under the Constitution of Missouri, immunity is provided for legislators except for treason, felonies or breaches of the peace. Drunken driving is a misdemeanor.

That part of the Constitution should be repealed.

As has so often been said, in referring to former President Nixon and many others, neither a President nor anyone else should be above the law. There should be no immunity for anyone.

Women's New World of Business:

Banks and Executive Suites
Victor Riesel's guest columnist today is Secretary of Commerce Juanita Kreps. She writes on the measures being taken by the Department of Commerce to bring about new opportunities for woman-owned businesses.

By Juanita Kreps
Secretary of Commerce

WASHINGTON — Not long ago, the Comptroller of the Currency approved applications for two new national banks, one in Washington, D.C., and the other in Denver, Colo. By itself, this was not news. What was news was that of the more than 4,700 national banks in the United States these were the first to be run by women.

Although there are several women-owned banks among the 1,000-plus that are state-chartered, it has taken until 1977 for the federal government to open the doors, highly illustrative of the problem women face of breaking into the area of business ownership.

Not until last year had the government bothered to count the number of women who are business proprietors. There is no law or regulation requiring such statistics. However, last year the Department of Commerce made a count.

This survey by the Census Bureau, paid for by the Office of Minority Business Enterprise, found that in 1972 out of 8,730,000 firms in the United States, 402,000 or only 4.6 per cent, were woman-owned. Furthermore, these businesses received only three tenths of 1 per cent of all revenues paid American firms.

The survey also showed that most woman-owned businesses were sole proprietorships, that 71 per cent were concentrated in the retail and nonprofessional service trades, and that only 13 per cent had paid employees. The average woman entrepreneur with an average of five employees in 1972 grossed less than $51,000, while the average gross for all U.S. firms was more than three-quarters of a million dollars.

Although there is general recognition that women play a vital role in the social and economic growth of our nation, few efforts have been made to encourage them to enter the business world as owners, co-owners, or managers of business concerns.

Women encounter the problems of all small businesspersons: lack of capital, lack of management and technical assistance, lack of marketing and procurement opportunities. These problems are compounded for the prospective businesswoman by traditional attitudes and by the sex discrimination that continues to persist in our society.

The federal government for some years has had programs to assist small businesses with problems of capitalization, management, technical assistance, and procurement, but none addressing the additional obstacles faced by women.

In 1975, the U.S. Civil Rights Commission found that woman-owned businesses and those owned by minorities were receiving less than 1 per cent of the more than $120 billion spent annually by federal, state, and local governments for procurement of goods and services. Commission interviews indicated that attitudinal barriers and other obstacles peculiarly applicable to women were in part responsible for their unequal share of this huge market.

The Commerce Department has only recently begun to offer assistance. The Office of Minority Business Enterprise has been examining the need for a national directory of women business owners. Such a directory would identify woman business owners. Such a directory would identify woman-owned businesses with whom private and government contractors could do business.

The American Women's Economic Development Corporation, a non-profit organization, has received funds from Commerce's Economic Development Administration for a pilot study of women in business. The group will focus on two areas: 1) helping women to start and expand their own business, and 2) assisting corporation, government, and private agencies to expand the economic opportunities for women. The project is the first in which women business owners have been the object of a study paid for with federal funds.

Late this year or early in 1978, the Census Bureau, which is an agency of the department of Commerce, will sponsor a conference on the statistical needs relating to women, including the problems faced by businesswomen. We expect that discussion of the issues by the data suppliers and users participating will result in a better understanding of needs in this important area.

In the meantime, members of my own staff are studying the feasibility of preparing for 1977 a census study similar to its 1972 report on woman-owned businesses.

The Department of Commerce was set up to foster business. It does so by providing scores of services. I have asked that officials responsible for each of these services see that briefings especially designed for women, both owners and business groups, be made available through Commerce's many offices around the country. These will include the process of identifying domestic and international business and contracting opportunities. Also, we are trying to add a woman's perspective to the department's "procurement conferences" held throughout the country, which explain to local business people how to do business with the federal government.

These are just beginnings in the effort to improve women's place in the business community. Congress, the executive branch, and business itself, particularly financial institutions, have much left to do. So do women themselves. They need the educational base to equip them to participate in the world of business. Women have been reluctant to seek business degrees. Without them, they are at a disadvantage. When this disadvantage is added to the traditional barriers, the unbalanced statistics on women in business are not surprising. Clearly we need a change in attitude and a concerted effort if we are to achieve a better balance. That effort must come from all quarters, and soon.

Mississippi Sex Case Could Ignite Political Scandal

by Jack Anderson and Les Whitten

WASHINGTON — A sordid little sex offense, involving a Jackson, Miss., police lieutenant, could blow the lid off a major political scandal in Mississippi.

The amorous officer, Lt. John Moulder, allegedly threatened to arrest a young woman unless she submitted to his sexual demands. The case would deserve no special attention, except that some powerful politicians have tried hard to cover it up.

Even the formidable Sen. James Eastland, D-Miss., intervened in the case. An FBI official told us that Eastland made inquiries that led to possible "obstruction of justice."

This attempt to hush up a small incident may conceal a far bigger story about how politics is practiced in Mississippi. The scenario has a familiar ring; it is beginning to sound like a Mississippi Watergate.

Moulder is a former vice squad chief who is intimately acquainted with the backrooms of Jackson. He has confided to intimates, indeed, that he has knowledge of the after-hours activities of certain powerful political and business leaders.

Moulder has now been accused of sampling some of the vice he was supposed to prevent. He allegedly obtained warrants for the arrest of a young woman on drug charges and threatened to serve them unless she "submitted to him for sexual intercourse, both natural and unnatural," according to a confidential police report.

The charges were thoroughly investigated by the internal affairs office of the Jackson Police Dept. The FBI was also called in to determine whether the woman's civil rights had been violated.

They took sworn statements from witnesses and found circumstantial evidence supporting the woman's story. Finally, she passed and Moulder failed a lie detector test.

But before he took the test, Moulder complained privately to the operator that he suffered from "hypertension" and asked him to rig the results. The anguished polygraph operator, Sgt. Larry Robinson, happened to be a close friend of Moulder. Nevertheless, Robinson reported the incident and added in a signed statement:

"At the time I was asked to alter the charts, I at that time through strong friendship, believed that I could almost help (Moulder). After a long, sleepless night, I cannot in all good conscious help anyone and live with myself."

The desperate Moulder, unable to rig the lie detector test, spread the word that he would expose some important people if he were prosecuted. Our sources quote him as saying: "If I go down, I'm not going down alone."

Suddenly, the investigation began to go Moulder's way. Kenneth Fairly, director of the Mississippi Narcotics Bureau, complained to FBI agents that the woman was "a bitch" and that they were trying to hang "a bum charge" on Moulder, according to confidential police reports. He added fiercely that he held three warrants against her for "buying" drugs from a state agent and that he was going to send her to Parchman prison.

Russell Davis, then Jackson's mayor, declared that the evidence against Moulder was inconclusive and that the vice squad officer, therefore, would be returned to duty.

In Washington, meanwhile, competent sources say Eastland pulled strings inside the Justice Dept. to get the FBI off Moulder's back. Few men have the clout to disrupt an FBI investigation. One of the few is James Eastland — crafty, cordial, flexible, courteous — a senator who has consolidated great power not by autocratic conduct but by knowing how to bend with the wind, ever so slightly, without losing place.

As Senate Judiciary chairman, he complained to the Justice Dept. about the FBI investigation of Moulder. Two top FBI inspectors were quickly dispatched to Jackson to review the case. Without consulting the local FBI office, they began questioning the witnesses over again.

This infuriated the special agent in charge, Roy Moore, when he found out about it. He angrily warned the two inspectors that they might be guilty of obstructing justice. He also protested to FBI chief Clarence Kelley about their intervention.

The two inspectors told FBI agents in Jackson that they had been sent to review the case at Eastland's request. Justice Dept. sources report they also heard that Eastland was responsible. It was "highly unusual," they added, for the FBI to send inspectors from Washington to review a routine civil rights investigation.

Moulder also acknowledged to us that he was aware of Eastland's intervention. The senator himself said he didn't "remember anything about it."

The FBI inspectors carefully grilled everyone connected with the case, including the two agents, William Stringer and Orrin Fueling, who had conducted the investigation. The inspectors reported back to Washington that they had turned up nothing improper.

Their review had the effect, nevertheless, of taking the wind out of the investigation. U.S. Attorney for Mississippi, Robert Haulberg, still wanted to present the case to a grand jury. But he was overruled by the Justice Dept. Justice Dept. sources insist no pressure was brought on the prosecuting attorney by Sen. Eastland.

These questions remain: Why were Mississippi politicians so anxious to cover up a minor sex offense? What tales would Moulder have told if the case against him had been prosecuted? We'll report more details in a future column.

Footnote: Moulder denied the sex charges and other improprieties that were brought against him. "All I know," he told us, "is that the U.S. attorney did not see fit to indict me." We should add that we spent a month investigating the case. We not only saw the police investigative reports but interviewed the Mississippian witnesses in Mississippi.

Billy Carter backs Lance

KANSAS CITY (AP) — President Carter's little brother, Billy, says that if he had to make a choice between Budget Director Bert Lance and the President for the best man in Washington, "I'd have a hell of a choice."

While Carter was acting as grand marshal at the I-70 Speedway's World Cup 400 Stock Car race in Odessa, Mo., over the weekend, he also told reporters he believes there is little difference between the philosophy of the President and Alabama Gov. George Wallace. The younger Carter has long been a supporter of Wallace, and said he will help the governor campaign for a Senate seat next year.

"I'm a Wallace Democrat who voted for Jimmy Carter," he said.

Billy said Lance, the director of the Office of Management and Budget who has come under criticism recently for his financial dealings, is "the best man in Washington." But after more questions, he allowed that his brother and Lance would finish in a dead heat for that title.

"Bert (Lance) told me yesterday (Friday) he won't resign," the President's brother said Saturday. "He may be fired, but he won't resign."

And Billy said he doesn't believe the polls, which indicate Carter's popularity is slipping because of the controversy over Lance, are accurate. He said that in his travels around the country, he has found that 90 per cent of the people are for Lance.

Testimony given in trial

AMARILLO, Tex. (AP) — Gus Gavrel faced a fierce new round of cross examination today as the fourth week of testimony unfolded in the capital murder trial of millionaire Cullen Davis.

The husky, 22-year-old Gavrel previously identified the Fort Worth industrialist as the assailant who gunned him down in a midnight shooting spree last year at the showplace Davis mansion.

His date, Beverly Bass, escaped unharmed. Two others died and another fell gravely wounded.

Davis, 43, is accused of killing his 12-year-old stepdaughter, Andrea Wilborn, in a prelude to the August 1976 attack on his estranged wife Priscilla, 36, and her boyfriend, Stan Farr.

Farr, his 6-foot-9 frame riddled by four bullets, died on a mansion floor shortly before Mrs. Davis, a bullet wound in her chest, fled to a neighbor's home for help.

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Israelis today observed Rush Hashana, the Jewish New Year, with prayers and picnics. Police were on stepped-up alert against terrorist attacks.

Armed guards were posted outside some synagogues and at the Wailing Wall in Jerusalem, Judaism's holiest shrine, where thousands gathered at sundown to usher in the Jewish year 5738.

Judaism follows a lunar calendar that according to tradition is calculated from the creation of the world, through all the generations listed in the Old Testament.

The holiday lasts until sundown Wednesday.

Sheriff killed in shooting

GALLATIN, Mo. (AP) — A 16-year-old youth was being held Sunday night in connection with the shooting death Sunday of Daviess County Sheriff S. L. Houghton.

The 65-year-old sheriff, who had been elected to the post several times, was shot about 3 a.m. in front of a rural home northwest of Gallatin in northwest Missouri.

The Missouri Highway Patrol said the sheriff had towed a teenager's car into Gallatin after the youth was involved in a traffic violation. The sheriff then took the youth and his mother to their home on a dead-end gravel road.

As Houghton started to leave, the patrol said, the youth flashed the porchlight, then began walking toward the sheriff's car. The youth allegedly opened the door on the passenger side, pointed a pistol at Houghton and shot him twice. He then reloaded the handgun and fired a third time, according to officers.

The youth was taken into custody and was being held in the Clinton County Jail.

The county coroner would say only that Houghton died of gunshot wounds.

Isaac Cox, Gallatin police chief, said he was awakened shortly after 3 a.m. by his dispatcher, who said: "You're sheriff's been shot somewhere in your county." Cox said a woman had called the dispatcher. Then Cox got a second call from the youth's mother, who told him: "The sheriff's been shot. He's laying in the road."

When Cox arrived, he said he found the sheriff lying face up in the road. The sheriff was still conscious, but by the time the ambulance drove the 22 miles to the nearest hospital in Cameron, he was pronounced dead.

A small caliber pistol was recovered at the scene. Houghton's father, Ben Houghton, was Daviess county sheriff about 45 years ago, according to Cox.

Utilities sue Westinghouse

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — A federal court trial under way here could have far-reaching implications on the future of one of the nation's largest manufacturers and the cost of nuclear power.

The suit brought by 20 utilities serving 33 million customers, seeks $2.5 billion from Westinghouse Electric Co. The suit centers on Westinghouse's cancellation of uranium supply contracts, which the firm says was caused by the Arab oil embargo.

If Westinghouse is forced to pay the $2.5 billion asked by the utilities, it could have a serious impact on the giant firm. If Westinghouse wins, it could mean higher bills for consumers.

Storm hits western Missouri

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Heavy rain drenched portions of northeast Kansas and western Missouri before dawn today, closing numerous streets in the Kansas City area.

Cars were stranded by high water in some city streets during the morning rush hour. By that time, the storm that had dumped nearly 6 inches of rain in some parts of the metropolitan area had been reduced to drizzle.

Sections of Kansas 92 and U.S. 59 near Oskaloosa, Kan., were closed by high water for awhile this morning, but U.S. 59 was completely reopened and Kansas 92 was open to one lane of traffic by midmorning.

Schools in the West Platte R-2 District at Weston, Mo., were closed because drivers couldn't get school buses started and there was high water in places. Mud created by the rain caused problems on some streets and roads.

There were high winds with the storm at times, and five planes were blown over and damaged at Fairfax Airport in Kansas City, Kan. The weather service said golfball-size hail fell at Baileyville, Kan., during the night.

Flash flooding occurred in widespread areas, and the National Weather Service issued a flash flood warning for portions of northwest and west-central Missouri until 10 a.m. A flash flood watch was issued for extreme northeastern Kansas this afternoon and tonight.

Some of the heaviest rain occurred in the Kansas portion of the Kansas City metropolitan area, with 5.96 inches reported at Westwood, 5.6 inches at Kansas City and Muncie and 4.17 inches at Lenexa. Five inches of rain also was reported at Tonganoxie and Horton in eastern Kansas.

The weather service said 4.25 inches of rain fell at Kansas City Municipal Airport, 3.74 at the international airport and 4.1 at Warrensburg.

The storm system that produced heavy rain in the Kansas City area between midnight and 6 a.m. had spread eastward by midmorning, and heavy rain was reported along the northern part of Missouri and the eastern border in St. Louis. Heavy rain continued in some portions of eastern Kansas and western Missouri.

Boeing denies illegal payment

SEATTLE (AP) — A Boeing Co., spokesman has denied a report that the aircraft firm paid an illegal $990,000 commission to the eldest son of former prime minister Indira Gandhi.

An English-language newspaper in New Delhi, the Indian Express, had said Saturday that investigators there learned of such a commission to Rajiv Gandhi, a pilot for Indian Airlines, in connection with the sale of three Boeing 737 jetliners.

However, the newspaper report "is untrue," said Pete Bush, public relations director for Boeing.

Banker's daughter held for ransom

MARYVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — A banker's daughter held for a $150,000 ransom says her kidnappers treated her well during her 56 hours and 25 minutes in captivity. They even gave her $25 as they set her free in a North Carolina motel parking lot.

Two suspects arrested and jailed in Charlotte, N.C., faced a hearing today where officials will seek to remove them to Tennessee for trial.

PANAMA CANAL

Recent news releases and reports have been discussing our governments plans to turn the Panama Canal over to the Panamanian government. This is one of the most ridiculous and stupid things that our leaders have attempted in a long time.

We built the canal for economical and military defense purposes. Why should we be stupid enough to turn it over to another country that will no doubt become another communist foothold in the Americas.

Without the canal, our ships would have to go around South America to get from our east coast to our west coast. One half of our naval defenses would be useless to the other if attacked. Costs of shipping goods would triple. And, our naval vessels would be more susceptible to attack by having to pass through more waters controlled by communist countries.

Write your representative and tell him that you don't care how much money the communist lobbyists are spreading around, that you want America to keep the Panama Canal and keep us safe.

Stick together and form organizations to stop this sell-out of our country.

Vilas, Evert claim singles at U.S. Open

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (AP) — Guillermo Vilas is No. 1 today, a proud, self-satisfied young man.

"I'm very happy with myself," he said. "I'm a very good friend of myself."

His critics had said his scorching clay court victory streak of 45 matches was not as meaningful as it seemed because it included no matches against the giants of the game of tennis, Bjorn Borg and Jimmy Connors.

But Sunday, the 25-year-old Argentine with the extreme top-spin backhand, outplayed Connors 2-6, 6-3, 7-6, 6-0 in the $462,420 U.S. Open championships. He hasn't had a crack yet at Borg, who had to default during this tournament because of a strained shoulder.

"This puts me very, very happy for sure," the bright-eyed and exuberant Vilas said after being mobbed by adoring fans at the West Side Tennis Club. The crowd had decided the match was over before the umpire did, streaming onto the court as soon as the linesman called a Connors forehand long.

Saturday, the glory was Chris Evert's, as outfoxed surprising Wendy Turnbull of Australia 7-6, 6-2 for her third consecutive U.S. Open title. It was roses for both the finalists, but the Open victory was particularly sweet for Miss Evert after her loss in the Wimbledon semifinal to Virginia Wade.

Prize money for each of the winners was $33,000, with $16,500 apiece to Connors and Miss Turnbull.

Vilas, blocked by his admirers and hoisted atop their shoulders, never congratulated Connors, who stormed away from the stadium with his mother and entourage. "I will apologize when I see him," Vilas said. "I wanted to shake his hand."

"He is a great player," he said of Connors. "I have a lot of respect for him. I think he played fair. I had nothing to lose. I knew the pressure was on him since he had not won a major title (this year) and this was his last chance."

Winds gusting up to 20 miles per hour swept over the court, blowing great clouds of dust on them from the synthetic clay like Har-Tru surface. "The wind was very strange," Vilas said of his losing first set. "He was hitting rockets."

But in the second set, as Vilas became more certain, coming in on more balls, Connors grew slightly tentative, and the Argentine was able to break him in the eighth game for 5-3. Vilas, the No. 4 seed, drew a roaring standing ovation as he took the next game with a backhand passing shot.

The third set went to 5-5 and each broke the other's service at love, forcing a tie-breaker. It was reminiscent of the third-set situation Connors faced last year in the final against Borg.

lasted Borg 11-9 in the tie-breaker and went on to victory.

The tie-breaker went to 3-3, then Vilas moved up to the net for a forehand volley winner. Connors netted a forehand, then Vilas hit one wide, making it 5-4. Vilas hit a forehand to the baseline for 6-4 and won on a swift forehand passing shot.

That gave Vilas extreme confidence. He then broke service in the second game of the fourth set with a crosscourt backhand that touched the sideline, broke again in the fourth when Connors' forehand volley hit the net, then kept his serve, punning Connors at love for 5-0.

In the final game, the two were playing the second deuce, forced when Connors double-faulted. Vilas took the advantage when the struggling Connors hit his forehand approach into the net. Their final rally had just begun when Connors hit his forehand too long.

The linesman saw it that way. Vilas thought he had. Connors stood and stared. Vilas' coach, Ion Tiriac, stood at his courtside seat and looked stern as a bull. The umpire said nothing. But the crowd had decided. The umpire made it official several moments later.

For Miss Evert, her final was the toughest match of the tournament. She had been asking for it all week, complaining politely that she wasn't getting enough competition.

Miss Turnbull provided it with the scurrying game that has given her the name "rabbit" among her World Team Tennis colleagues on the Cleveland Nets.

"She made me play my very best," Miss Evert said. "She played very well and she now can be considered one of the best players in the world."

Despite the loss, Miss Turnbull, seeded 12th, received the recognition that had long avoided her. She beat Ms. Wade and second-seeded Martina Navratilova en route to the final.

The first-set tie-breaker came after 12 games of steady rallies of ground strokes, and Miss Evert won it 7-3.

"Then I let her break me in the first game of the second set and she ran away with it," Miss Turnbull said. "It is really tough to play Chrissie on clay and I think I played very well. I'm really not disappointed."

Even as a loser, Miss Turnbull advanced further than she ever had in a major tournament.

Miss Evert seemed undisturbed by a pinched nerve in her left shoulder, saying it hurt only on the toss for her serve. She said she hadn't seen a doctor yet because she was superstitious.

"If I'm going to get it amputated, I don't want to know about it until after the tournament," Miss Evert joked.

Trojans, Michigan most impressive of Top 20

By HERSCHEL NISSENSEN
AP Sports Writer

Southern Cal and Michigan kept insisting that last season's confrontation in the Rose Bowl game should have been for college football's national championship. Off the early 1977 returns, they're probably entitled to an "I told you so."

While many of the leaders in The Associated Press preseason poll had their problems, second-ranked Michigan and No. 4 Southern Cal were impressive weekend winners—the Wolverines trouncing Illinois 37-9 and the Trojans avenging last year's only setback by trimming Missouri 27-10.

It is far too early in the season for any team to stake a solid claim to the No. 1 ranking. For example, top-rated Oklahoma barely edged unheralded Vanderbilt 25-23. No. 3 Notre Dame needed an injury to Pitt quarterback Matt Cavanaugh and six second-half turnovers to overtake the seventh-ranked—and defending national champion—Panthers 19-9. No. 5 Ohio State outlasted Miami of Florida 10-0, eighth-ranked Texas Tech held off Baylor 17-7 and

No. 10 Maryland rallied to defeat Clemson 21-14.

Sixth-ranked Alabama, however, whipped Mississippi 34-13 and dried some of Bear Bryant's tears while No. 9 Texas A&M trimmed Kansas 28-14.

Michigan came down hard on an old friend, Illinois Coach Gary Moeller, who was Bo Schembechler's top aide last year. Rick Leach threw two touchdown passes, Harlan Huckleby scored twice and the Wolverines rushed for 350 yards but Schembechler insisted it was "hard to get up for the game because everyone likes him (Moeller) so much. It was a first game and we didn't play as well as we are capable."

Moeller knew he had his work cut out for him.

"There offense is probably better than any Michigan team I ever was associated with," he said.

Meanwhile, Rob Hertel threw two touchdown passes and scored once while super soph Charles White rushed for 155 yards and a touchdown to lead Southern Cal past Missouri.

Hertel completed 12 of 20

passes for 203 yards, leading Missouri Coach Al Onofrio to say, "I've never seen a passer like Rob Hertel was today."

Said USC's John Robinson: "We feel we can wear an opponent down as the game goes on. We have the size and strength to run at people, even if we do make a few errors."

Oklahoma brought freshman quarterback Jay Jimerson off the bench in the final period and he scored the go-ahead touchdown on a 20-yard run. The Sooners got the clincher when Bud Hebert blocked a Vanderbilt field goal try and Barry Burget scooped it up and raced 64 yards.

While Vandy Coach Fred Pancoast beefed about the officiating—"too damn many questionable calls for any football game"—OU's Barry Switzer called it "the worst exhibition of Oklahoma football I've ever seen."

Even minus Tony Dorsett, Pitt had high hopes of defending its 1976 national crown...until Cavanaugh was kayoed by Notre Dame's Willie Fry just as he tossed a 12-yard touchdown pass to Gordon Jones late in the opening period. Cavanaugh underwent surgery Sunday for a broken arm and will be sidelined for at least a month.

"Things were starting to fall into place—and then everything is out the window," said Jackie Sherrill, Pitt's new coach.

Ohio State lost Jeff Logan, last year's top ground-gainer, with a first-half ankle injury but Ron Springs rushed for 113 yards and the game's lone touchdown on a 21-yard burst in the second quarter.

"The margin of victory was disappointing," said Woody Hayes, one of the few coaches around who won't settle for 11 one-point triumphs.

The Second Ten produced the weekend's major upset—Washington State's 19-10 shocker over 15th-ranked Nebraska. Jack Thompson, the "Throwin' Samoan," hurled two scoring passes to make the head coaching debut of ex-Nebraska aide Warren Powers a smashing success.

Bucs' Parker to swing for fences for rest of '77

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

The Pittsburgh Pirates' "Hit Man" is putting out a contract on all National League pitchers.

"If the game situation allows it, I think I'll be swinging for home runs the rest of the year," says Dave Parker.

His primary goal, of course, is to help the Pirates win the National League East title, but the way the Philadelphia Phillies are playing, that may be an impossible dream.

More within Parker's grasp is a season of 100 runs batted in. He already has reached a cherished level—the 200-hit mark—and is on his way to the league's batting title with a .345 average.

Parker became the first National Leaguer to reach the 200-hit plateau this season with his double in the first inning. Later, his home run made more news because it matched an accomplishment by the late Roberto Clemente.

The homer was Parker's 20th and he became the first Pirates player to collect 20 homers and 200 hits in the same season since Clemente did it in 1967.

With two RBI Sunday, Parker improved his total to 86. While Parker was having a good day, so was Greg Luzinski of the Phillies. He blasted a three-run homer, leading Philadelphia to a 6-5 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals that kept the Phillies in front of the Pirates by eight games.

In other NL action Sunday, the Cincinnati Reds defeated the Los Angeles Dodgers 6-2, the New York Mets trimmed the Chicago Cubs 7-3, the Atlanta Braves whipped the San Diego Padres 7-3, and the San Francisco Giants beat the Houston Astros 2-1. Phillies 6, Cardinals 5.

Tommy Hutton and Bake McBride both singled in the fourth inning before Luzinski ripped a pitch over the left field fence, sending the Phillies ahead 6-5.

Warren Brusstar, 5-2, was the winner with relief help from Gene Garber, who notched his 15th save.

Reds 6, Dodgers 2

Johnny Bench's two-run double triggered a four-run first inning and gave the Cincinnati catcher 100 RBI for the sixth time in his career as the Reds defeated Los Angeles. Bench's double tied him with ex-teammate Tony Perez as the only active major leaguer with six 100 RBI seasons.

Mets 7, Cubs 3

Bruce Boicclair's two-run double keyed a four-run fifth inning, leading New York over Chicago. Before the Mets rallied, the Cubs had taken a 3-0 lead in the fourth on a double by Bill Buckner, a single by Steve Ontiveros and a two-run homer by Manny Trillo.

John Milner followed Boicclair's big fifth-inning hit with an RBI double and Joel Youngblood capped the rally with a run-scoring single. Youngblood later doubled home two Mets runs in the ninth.

Rick Reuschel, 19-8, was unsuccessful in his third bid for his 20th victory.

Braves 7, Padres 3

Pat Rockett's run-scoring single in the sixth inning broke a 3-3 tie and Atlanta later pulled off a triple steal to highlight a three-run eighth while beating San Diego.

Garry Matthews and Biff Pocoroba were on base with walks against San Diego starter Randy Jones, 6-12, in the sixth when Rockett sent a liner to left, scoring Matthews from second with the eventual winning run.

Rockett's hit chased Jones and made a winner of Eddie Solomon, 5-5.

Giants 2, Astros 1

Rob Andrews' single in the eighth inning drove home the winning run as San Francisco beat Houston. Ed Halicki, 14-10, scattered seven hits over the first 72-3 innings before giving way to relief ace Gary Lavelle, who blanked the Astros the rest of the way for his 19th save of the season.

Weekend surprises cloud NFL season

By WILLIAM R. BARNARD
AP Sports Writer

The National Football League has completed its last six-game preseason with a few surprises that could be making the prognosticators a little edgy before the start of the regular season next Sunday.

The league has voted to drop two exhibition games and add two regular season games for a 16-4 split. In recent years, the schedule has called for 14 season contests and six exhibitions.

But in the last go-round of preseason games, there were some shocking results involving preseason favorites and some rumblings of discontent.

It all started Thursday night with Dallas' 30-0 lashing of American Conference powerhouse Pittsburgh and continued Saturday night with expansion Tampa Bay's 14-0 whitewashing of perennial play-off contender Baltimore.

On Sunday, the New England Patriots—who some observers believe have the best chance to unseat the Oakland Raiders as Super Bowl champs—ran their preseason record to 5-1 with a 29-10 triumph over Atlanta. But the kingly of their offensive line, Leon Gray and John Hannah, walked out on the team in a contract dispute before the game.

The two other games Sunday that closed out the preseason schedule saw the Miami Dolphins outscore the New York Giants 27-21 and San Diego outlast Seattle 38-20.

Minnesota bombed Buffalo 30-6, New Orleans edged Houston 20-16, Cincinnati crushed Chicago 24-6, Denver blanked San Francisco 20-0 and Kansas City outscored St. Louis 37-20 on Saturday.

Tampa Bay Coach John McKay, who only has three preseason victories in a total of 26 exhibition and regular-season games in the Buccaneers' existence, saw top draft choice Ricky Bell score both Tampa Bay touchdowns.

"They laughed before the game and now we're laughing," said McKay.

Bob Griese, wearing glasses to correct a vision problem, threw two touchdown passes and Gary Davis plunged for two short TDs to pace the Dolphins over the Giants. Griese hit flanker Freddie Solomon with a 66-yard scoring pass and put Miami ahead to stay on the first play of the fourth quarter with an eight-yard toss to Du-rriel Harris.

Ricky Young scored on runs of two and six yards and on a two-yard pass from quarterback James Harris as the Chargers pummeled the Seahawks.

With victories Saturday, New Orleans, Denver and Cincinnati preceded New England in having the best preseason marks—5-1.

The Saints got completions on 13 of 17 passes from Bobby Scott before he left the game against Houston with a sprained knee in the third period.

Ken Anderson fired three TD passes, two of them to Billy Brooks as the Bengals crushed Chicago.

Denver handed San Francisco its third consecutive shutout loss. Linebacker Randy Gradishar led the Broncos' defensive charge, returning an interception 70 yards for a TD.

Luzinski campaigns for MVP

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The first unofficial ballot in what could be the closest contest ever for National League Most Valuable Player honors has been cast from a most unexpected source.

The Philadelphia Phillies' Greg Luzinski, who shuns publicity and usually speaks only when spoken to, has voted for Greg Luzinski.

"I'm not usually outspoken," said Luzinski Sunday in a masterpiece of understatement, "but I think I deserve it. I've had a hell of a season."

Luzinski's outburst resulted from a reporter prodding "The Bull" about the post season MVP voting. It came after his three-run home run in the fourth inning triggered a 6-5 victory for the Phillies over the St. Louis Cardinals.

The other likely candidates for the MVP award are Cincinnati's slugger George Foster, and Pittsburgh's giant Dave Parker. All have outstanding credentials, and the two writers from each league city who will vote are going to have to do some homework.

Luzinski, 26, has a .310 batting average, 36 homers and 120 RBI for the first place Phillies in the National League East. Foster is hitting .314 with 46 homers and 133 RBI for the second place Reds in the West. Parker leads the league with a .347 average and in hits with 200, and doubles, 42 for the second place Pirates in the East. Vern Rapp, manager of the Cardinals, said Luzinski has already proven he is the most valuable.

"My feeling is that the MVP has to come from a division winning team," Rapp said. "What Luzinski has done proves he is the most valuable."

Luzinski has hit nine homers and driven in 26 runs against St. Louis, which certainly has to color Rapp's opinion. But the Cardinals manager bases his choice on a player leading a club to something.

The Cardinals got a first inning 2-0 lead Sunday against Phillies' starter Jim Lonborg, who missed a start because of a sore shoulder. Lou Brock doubled and scored on Greg Templeton's triple. Templeton came home on an infield out.

The Phillies went ahead in the third when starter John Denny walked the bases loaded. Jay Johnstone sent one run home on a sacrifice fly, another scored on Garry Maddox' double, and a third run crossed on Bob Boone's sacrifice fly.

Mistakes doom Big Red

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Paul Wiggins feels his youthful Kansas City Chiefs are beginning to gel.

The St. Louis Cardinals' Don Coryell, however, may well have a stomach like Jello these days.

"I'm not saying we're a contender or anything," says Wiggins. "But we're doing things right and we're building things right here."

The Chiefs used a pair of third-quarter touchdowns passes by quarterback Gary Adams and opportunistic defensive play by cornerback Gary Green to build a 37-20 pre-season National Football League victory over the Cardinals Saturday night.

Kansas City, ending the exhibition campaign at 3-3, also reclaimed the Governors' Cup, the trophy that goes to the winner of this annual intra-state rivalry.

"We did the things that winners do...and we're really going to have to do that this year," said Wiggins, whose squad opens the regular season Sept. 18 against the New England Patriots.

Coryell openly admitted apprehension concerning his team after the Cardinals dominated every offensive category against the Chiefs but dropped their fifth exhibition loss in six games.

"We just have to stop beating ourselves and start beating the other team," Coryell sighed. "A 1-5 pre-season record is a very sobering thought. We made a lot of yards, but not enough points."

St. Louis rolled up 424 yards total offense to Kansas City's 276, had 30 first downs to the Chiefs' 13 and had the ball for nearly 43 of the game's 60 minutes.

utes.

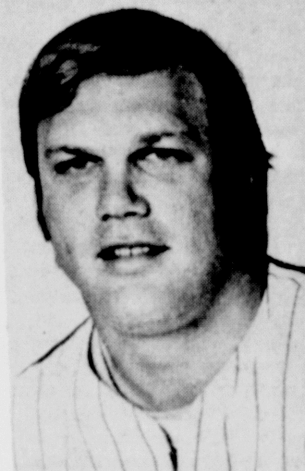

But the Cardinals also watched Green, a rookie from Baylor, return a Jim Hart interception 81 yards for a touchdown, block a Jim Bakken; field goal try and knock down a Bakken extra point effort. In addition, the Chiefs turned a pair of first-half St. Louis fumbles into Jan Stenerud field goals of 49 and 27 yards.

Kansas City constructed a 13-7 halftime lead as Tony Reed preceded Stenerud's boots with a three-yard run. Adams, taking over for Mike Livingston sandwiched a 14-yard touchdown toss to Henry Marshall and a 63-yard bomb to Walter White around a one-yard St.

Louis scoring run by Jim Oatis to make it 27-13 and the Chiefs were never threatened after that.

St. Louis' Jerry Latin, who scored from 10 yards out in the opening quarter, followed Green's touchdown run with a five-yard burst into the end zone, then Stenerud hit a 35-yard field goal to end the scoring.

Waterfowl seasons set

JEFFERSON CITY — The Conservation Commission has divided the state into a northern and southern zone in setting the 1977 duck season. Hunting dates differ for the two zones.

Hunting dates for the north zone are October 25 to December 8. Boundaries of the zone are north of U.S. Highway 160 from the Kansas line to Springfield; north of U.S. Highway 60 from Springfield to junction with Missouri Highway 34; to Cape Girardeau.

Hunting in the southern zone will open November 15 and run through December 29. The zone is the remainder of Missouri south of the northern zone.

The point system has been retained for the 1977 season. Hunters may take ducks until the last duck they take carries their point total to or over 100 points. Shooting hours are one half hour before sunrise to sunset.

Canvasbacks count 100 points and the Mississippi River will be closed to canvasbacks and redhead hunting from Alton Dam north to the Iowa line.

Mallard hens, wood ducks, black ducks, redheads and hooded mergansers each count 70 points. Pintail, gadwall, shoveler, scaup, mergansers except hooded, and all teal are 10 points each. Mallard drakes and all other ducks count 25 points.

Generally, the Canada goose season opens October 25 and runs through December 8, except that in the Swan Lake zone, there will be a 25,000 bird quota or 45 days, whichever comes first. Hunters in the Swan Lake and Montrose zones may take one Canada or two white-fronted geese daily or one of each. Possession is two Canadas and two white-fronted.

In the Lower Mississippi zone, the season opens December 7 and runs through January 20 with a daily limit of two Canada geese or two white-fronted geese or one of each. Possession limit is four Canadas and white-fronted in the aggregate, except that not more than two can be white-fronted geese.

In the rest of the state the daily limit is two Canadas or two white-fronted or one of each and possession limit is two of each. The White River Lakes zone (Barry, Stone, Taney & Ozark Counties) is closed to Canada goose hunting.

Blue, snow and white-fronted goose season opens October 25 and runs through January 2, with a daily bag and possession limit of five on blue and snow geese. Hunters may mix daily bag limits of geese, but may not possess more than five geese daily regardless of species.

In the Swan Lake zone, no hunter shall fire more than 10 shells daily at geese during the Canada goose season.

Hearne to speak on Canal

The Conservative Caucus will hold a conference of leaders from around the state of Missouri, Saturday, Sept. 17, at Le Chateau Restaurant, 10405 Clayton Road, St. Louis, just west of Lindguth Blvd. and south of highway 40. Featured speakers will be Clarence Warner, National Republican Committeeman from Oklahoma, on "neighborhood Organizing", Paul Weyrich of the Committee for the Survival of the Free Congress, on "Congress", Howard Phillips, National Director of the Conservative Caucus, and Donna Hearne, Missouri Director on "The U.S. Canal at Panama".

Meetings such as this are being held in all fifty states in order to provide district leaders with information and suggestions that will help them organize a non-partisan independent caucus in every congressional district. Such organizations will give an effective voice to the conservative majority which, according to all polls and surveys, exists throughout the nation. Attendees will also receive up-to-date information on national, state and district affairs.

The CONSERVATIVE CAUCUS is a national organization of 250,000 members, and growing. About 6,000 of the members are in Missouri. As it grows in numbers and effectiveness, and organizes in each congressional district, the Caucus comes closer to its goal of "Conservative Dominance Over the Policies of the U.S. Congress" by 1980.

Anyone interested in attending should send $15.00 to The Conservative Caucus, 318 Clion Lane, St. Louis, Mo 63141 or call (314) 434-7028.

Comments invited on tomato juice

Carol Tucker Foreman, assistant secretary of Agriculture for food and consumer services, invited comments on proposed revision of the U.S. grade standards for canned tomato juice and puree. The proposals would allow the use of colorimeters (electric color meters) in evaluating the color of these products. Color is a major factor in determining the grades of manufactured tomato products.

Under the proposals any carefully calibrated and standardized electronic color meter system can be used if it has been approved by the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA). Officials of USDA's Food Safety and Quality Service (FSQS) said color may still be evaluated visually. Comments on the proposals will be accepted until Dec. 31. Written comments should be sent in duplicate to the Hearing Clerk, Rm. 1077-S, U.S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D.C. 20250, where they will be available for public inspection.

The Canners League of California requested the changes in the grade standards for the two products to permit the use of colorimeters. Colorimeters help minimize visual error caused by eye fatigue and eliminate the need for the precise lighting conditions that are essential for accurate visual evaluation of color.

The proposals are scheduled to appear in the Sept. 13 Federal Register. Copies of the proposed revisions may be obtained from the Fruit and Vegetable Quality Division, FSQS, USDA, Washington, D.C. 20250.

FSQS established grade standards and provides official grading services for many food products. Use of the grade standards or grading services is voluntary.

Inflation boosts cost

In bouquets, arrangements and bunches, Americans buy billions of flowers every year and the same inflation that has been eroding buying power in other areas has boosted the price of the blossoms.

Industry spokesmen blame higher fuel costs for much of the increase. Many flowers are grown in greenhouses and the natural gas to heat the greenhouses has risen in price. Labor, materials and shipping charges also are more expensive.

"Energy costs alone have tripled in the past three years," said Douglas Gordon of the Denver Wholesale Florist Co. which ships about 80 million carnations a year from Colorado -- the nation's biggest carnation producer -- to the rest of the country and overseas. Labor, fertilizer and pesticides also have gone up sharply, he said.

Preceptor chapter holds meeting

Members of the Missouri Preceptor Beta Sigma chapter of Beta Sigma Phi met at the home of Mrs. Tatty Tope for their first fall meeting.

Mrs. Erma Braswell reported on the action of the board meeting. Members selected the months in which they preferred to serve as hostess or as a program leader. Names of Secret Sisters were drawn, and members voted Mrs. Lila Harwell as Big Sister.

Dear Ann Landers

Romance ends with Buzzy's bite

Dear Ann Landers: My boyfriend, Buzzy, is a sweet guy, but now and then I see signs of a terrible temper.

Last Friday night when we were horsing around on the floor, I got a toe-hold on him. (I learned it from watching wrestling on TV.) I think he went a little crazy, Ann. The guy actually bit me on the hand. I don't mean just a nibble, I mean a real bite that broke the skin. When I saw the blood I nearly fainted.

Buzzy said he was sorry, that he lost his head, and promised never to do such a thing again. I forgave him. The next day my mother saw the teethmarks and asked what happened. I was going to put the blame on Tuffy (our dog), but decided I'd better tell the truth. When I told Mom Buzzy bit me she was horrified -- said a human bite can be very dangerous. Is this true? So far I am O.K. Please tell me if Mom is right. -- Nipped By Nick

Dear Nipped: Yes, she is right. You were lucky. Every human mouth is loaded with bacteria. You could have gotten a bad infection.

If that clown ever bites you again, wash the wound with soap and water, see a doctor promptly, and send Buzzy for a long walk on a short dock.

Dear Ann: I was ticked off by the letter from the office worker who complained because a personal letter was opened by someone in the mail room.

You can see from this stationery I am the president of a well-known company. I do not pay the mail room girl a salary to deliver personal letters to my employees. Nor do I pay my employees to read their personal mail on my time. Moreover, my employees have no right to use my typewriters and writing paper to carry on personal correspondence. I'll bet you'll hear a lot on this subject from bosses all over the country and they will all be on my side. -- Third Eye

Dear Eye: You were right. I did -- and they were. What's more, as an employer, I must say you have a point. Read on if you want to know what the postal authorities in Chicago had to say on the subject:

All mail addressed to a business (regardless of whether or not it is marked "personal") is delivered according to the instructions issued by the head of the business -- unless it is registered mail.

If the boss says all mail delivered to the mail room is to be opened, so be it. "Personal And Confidential" has no legal significance. This does not mean, however, that the boss has the right to open letters addressed to others. The directive applies only to the letter-opener in the mail room.

Dear Ann Landers: In one of your replies recently you asked, "Where are the State Police?" Well, they were probably on the highway doing their job, but will all the "ratters" on C.B.'s they don't stand a chance of catching many speeders.

Those C.B.'ers are forever warning each other to look out for the "County Mountie", "City Kitty", "Smokey Bear" or "Picture Taker."

From the way you answered that letter, I have a hunch you are a good driver. And when you gave your handle as "Lincoln Land Annie Baby" I just knew you were a C.B.'er of long standing. How about the slowdown? -- Green Eyed Luke From Creaky Canyon

Dear Creak: Wrong on both counts. I quit driving 20 years ago as my contribution to the pedestrians of Chicago. That "handle" was one I made up at the typewriter.

There is a big difference between cold and cool. Ann Landers shows you how to play it cool without freezing people out in her booklet, "Teen-Age Sex -- Ten Ways to Cool It." Send 50 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Ill. 60611.

POLLY'S POINTERS

DEAR POLLY -- My Pointer is for those who wear glasses with plastic frames. The frames tend to get a buildup of salt and oil so I use a piece of cotton cloth moistened with nail polish remover and rub quite hard until the white marks disappear and then a bit of extra rubbing makes them shine. (Polly's note -- I dampened another piece of cotton with water to wipe away the remover and then rubbed mine to a shine.) Also, I think Juanita could remove the crayon marks from her doll's face with toothpaste and then go over it with a damp cloth. I have used this all over the house for such marks. SARA

Weekend death toll up to 17

By The Associated Press
A head-on collision on a mid-Missouri county road Sunday night claimed the lives of three Hallsville men, as the weekend death toll in Missouri rose to 17.

The Missouri Highway Patrol identified the victims, who were riding in the same car, as Clifton E. Woolfolk, 23, Steve Driskill and Bucky Brandt, both 21.

Three persons in the other car were hospitalized, two of them in serious condition.

Peggy A. Hulse, 20, of the Kansas City suburb of Shawnee Mission, was killed about 10:30 p.m. Sunday in a one-car accident on rain-slick I-70 near the downtown area of Kansas City. Her husband was in critical condition at a Kansas City hospital early today.

James Allen Rucks, 36, Garland, Tex., was killed early Sunday in southwest Missouri when his tractor-trailer truck loaded with steel sheets ran off Missouri 38, struck a tree and rolled over.

Killed in another accident Sunday was Leroy Huntley III, 22, Neosho, when his car failed to make a curve on old U.S. 60 east of Seneca and slammed into a tree.

Amos Bridges, 79, and his wife, Ruby, 72, Pomona, died Saturday in a head-on collision on U.S. 63 in southeast Missouri.

L. C. Howard, 29, St. Louis, died Saturday after he was struck by a passing car on a St. Louis city street as he stepped from his car.

Clifford Love, 43, Nevada, was killed Saturday when his tractor-trailer rammed into a moving freight train in Vernon County and burst into flames.

William Roessler, 21, of the St. Louis suburb of Sunset Hills, was killed Saturday when a car pulled in front of his motorcycle on Missouri 30 near his hometown.

Memphis girl is Miss Black

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) — Like the song she sang in the talent portion of the Miss Black America contest — Quincy Jones' "Everything Must Change" — the life of Claire Ford had changed Saturday.

The 18-year-old from Memphis, Tenn., was crowned Miss Black America Friday night, beating out 30 other contestants from the United States and Puerto Rico.

"It feels good when your prayers are answered," she said Saturday. "I prayed and it's great. I'm so excited."

The 5-foot-10, 135-pound teenager is the youngest of three children and wants to be a corporate lawyer.

The first thing she did after winning the crown and returning to her motel room was to order a hamburger and french fries.

"I didn't eat anything all day because of the swim suit competition, but I'm ready now," explained the sophomore English major at Memphis State University.

In addition to a $10,000 cash prize, she will be given a screen test at Universal Pictures and NBC.

The pageant was televised for the first time.

First runner-up was Mary Bentley, 20, of Indianapolis, a telecommunications major at Indiana University.

Miss Black Ohio, Nina Maria Lucas of Dayton, was second runner-up. Third runner-up was Miss Black Nebraska, Johndrea Whitmore, 20, of Omaha.

Dexter council changes public intoxication laws

DEXTER — The Dexter City Council, with two members absent, held a brief meeting Tuesday night, with topics ranging from drunks to payment of tax assessments.

The 21-minute meeting was held without aldermen Dale Pursell and Doran Vancil, both out of town.

Main discussion at the meeting concerned a change in state public intoxication laws, and the relation to city ordinances.

City Attorney Paul McGhee explained that the recently-adjoined State Legislature passed a new state law making public intoxication a non-criminal offense.

McGhee said that change in state law meant that the city ordinances regarding public intoxication would have to be changed.

The City Attorney explained that under provisions of the new state law, simply being drunk in public, without breaking any other law, is no longer a criminal offense. Under the new law, those who are drunk in public should either be taken home or to a public treatment center or they may be placed in jail for up to 12 hours, if no charges are filed.

Mayor Willis Conner, terming the new law "silly," said "I want everybody to know that this change is not our idea, but comes down from the state."

Proponents of the new state law had said that alcoholic detention and treatment centers were better for alcoholics and drunks than jail sentences and fines.

McGhee asked that the city change its ordinances to reflect the new state laws, and the council agreed, on a 4-0 vote.

In other business, the council: -- Approved a business license change for the Happy Hour bar, now owned by Bill and Mary Hutchcraft, with payment of a $122.50 license fee.

-- Approved a liquor by the drink license for the Hickory House lounge, with payment of a $450 license fee.

-- Appointed Gerald Beam to the Planning and Zoning Commission, replacing engineer Daryl Orr, who has moved outside the Dexter city limits. The council agreed to appoint Beam to the commission, and named Orr to an advisory capacity with the Commission.

-- Approved a resolution setting a public hearing on paving Rainey Street from Poplar to Hickory. The public hearing will be held at the next regular council session, Sept. 19.

-- Agreed that residents on the Hickory Street sewer district can pay their tax assessments in installments, if they so desire.

-- Approved August disbursements, totaling $152,572.53.

'Roots' gets 9 Emmys

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "Roots" gathered up nine Emmys in an awards show that made up for a four-month delay by being the longest in the 29-year history of the Television Academy.

The 12-hour miniseries seen on ABC last January won Emmys for best limited series, directing and writing, with acting awards going to Louis Gossett Jr., Edward Asner and Olivia Cole. The three remaining Emmys for "Roots" were in craft categories.

The Sunday night Emmy Awards Show on NBC, delayed four months by a squabble that split the National Academy of Television Arts and Sciences into an Eastern National Academy and a Hollywood Academy, ran a record 3½ hours. It was 40 minutes longer than the previous longest show last year.

"As long as we're running over, let's do it good," said Angie Dickinson, who was co-host with Robert Blake for the ceremonies at the state's Pasadena Civic Auditorium.

The Hollywood Academy handed out Emmys in 42 prime time categories, with 27 Emmys going to ABC, 21 to NBC, 17 to CBS and eight to PBS.

"Eleanor and Franklin: The White House Years," won seven awards and tied with "Sybil" for outstanding dramatic series.

"Sybil" won four awards, including an award to star Sally Field, who was named best actress in a drama special for her portrayal of a woman afflicted by multiple personalities.

Dick Van Dyke's variety

The Lame Duck became a symbol of one of America's oldest political animals — the defeated office-holder serving out the remainder of his term. In the 18th century, however, the lame duck symbolized a speculator who got caught short playing the stock market.

Thoughts

From The Living Bible

Then Solomon built his own palace, which took thirteen years to construct. One of the rooms in the palace was called the Hall of the Forest of Lebanon. It was huge—measuring 150 feet long, 75 feet wide, and 45 feet high. The great cedar ceiling beams rested upon four rows of cedar pillars. There were forty-five windows in the hall, set in three tiers, one tier above the other, five to a tier, facing each other from three walls. Each of the doorways and windows had a square frame.

series, "Van Dyke and Co.," canceled by NBC last year after 11 performances, won as best variety series. "The Barry Manilow Special" was named outstanding variety special.

"I'm a little angry at NBC for pre-empting us so many times," said Van Dyke. "We even got letters asking us if we were doing a special."

Ed Flanders was named outstanding lead actor in a dramatic special for his feisty portrayal of the president in "Harry S. Truman: Plain Speaking."

Beatrice Arthur, going into her sixth year as "Maude," won her first Emmy as best lead actress in a comedy series. Carroll O'Connor, whose Archie Bunker is Maude's conservative counterpart, was named best actor in a comedy series for "All in the Family."

The retiring "Mary Tyler Moore Show" bowed out after seven years by capturing the Emmy as best comedy series. Its writers also won award for her farewell performance, and the Academy paid a special tribute to the show in excerpts dating back to its beginning.

James Garner won an Emmy as best dramatic series actor for his private eye-on-wry in "The Rockford Files," and Lindsay Wagner as best actress in a dramatic series for "The Bionic Woman."

Once again, Britain's "Upstairs, Downstairs" walked away with the award for best dramatic series.

Christopher Plummer, playing a corrupt banker in "The Money Changers," took the Emmy for best lead actor in a limited series. Patty Duke Astin won as best lead actress for "Captains and the Kings."

Burgess Meredith, who played lawyer Joseph Welsh, was named best supporting actor in a special for "Tail Gunner Joe" about Sen. Joseph McCarthy.

Diana Hyland, who died of cancer this spring, was named outstanding supporting actress in a drama special for "The Boy in the Plastic Bubble." Her award was accepted in an emotional outpouring by John Travolta, her close friend who played her son in the movie.

Backstage, Meredith said he had been blacklisted during the Communist-hunting McCarthy era. "I was very glad when Joe Welsh came along," he said. "I was very glad that I got to play Joe Welsh."

Tim Conway was selected as the best supporting actor in a variety series for "The Carol Burnett Show." Rita Moreno was named best supporting actress in a variety show for an appearance on "The Muppet Show."

Beulah Bondi won as best actress in a single appearance for a part on "The Waltons." Louis Gossett Jr. was named best actor for an appearance in a series for part two of "Roots."

Gary Burghoff won as best supporting actor in a comedy series for "M-A-S-H," and Mary Kay Place won for "Mary Hartman, Mary Hartman."

For dramatic series, Gary Frank won as best supporting actor for "Family," and Kristy McNichol, also seen on "Family," won an Emmy as best supporting actress on her 15th birthday.

Other "Roots" winners included Edward Asner as outstanding supporting actor in a single appearance in a series for the opening episode of "Roots." Olivia Cole won as best supporting actress in a single performance in a series for the eighth and final chapter of "Roots."

Our Oil Bill

A decade ago, the United States imported virtually no oil. Today the country imports 40 per cent. An analysis in "Across the Board," The Conference Board's monthly magazine, notes the current price of $14 a barrel for oil is up from $1 in 1960. Total bill for imported oil leaped from $3 billion in 1971 to $27 billion in 1975 and to $34 billion in 1976. It will soar beyond $40 billion in 1977.

Thoughts

From The Living Bible

Our glory is gone. The crown is fallen from our head. Woe upon us for our sins. Our hearts are faint and weary; our eyes grow dim. Jerusalem and the Temple of the Lord are desolate, deserted by all but wild animals lurking in the ruins. O Lord, forever you remain the same! Your throne continues from generation to generation. Why do you forget us forever? Why do you forsake us for so long? Turn us around and bring us back to you again! That is our only hope! Give us back the joys we used to have!

New plan differs little from first

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — The new Israeli peace plan which Prime Minister Menachem Begin's government is sending to the United States next week apparently differs little in its major provisions from what the previous Labor governments were prepared to offer.

Begin's cabinet at its weekly meeting Sunday approved the proposed peace treaty Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan will take to Washington and the U.N. General Assembly. Officially, the details were secret, but the major provisions have been leaked, and the Arabs have already rejected them.

Israel's territorial demands — the key issue as far as the Arabs are concerned — are not outlined in the draft treaty but are contained in an accompanying letter which Dayan will deliver to President Carter and Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance.

"The letter spells out general principles, most of which the Americans already know," a Foreign Ministry official said. "For example the problems of security, of defense of the sources of the Jordan River or of freedom of navigation through the Gulf of Eilat."

In terms of the territory occupied in the 1967 Arab-Israeli War, this meant retention of a strong position on the Golan Heights, overlooking the upper Jordan River and the Sea of Galilee, and along the east coast of the Sinai peninsula commanding the approach to Eilat, Israel's southern port.

For the West Bank of the Jordan River, the new draft adopts the Labor government's plan for a string of Israeli military positions along the river.

The plan abandons the previous governments' vague offers to return part of the West Bank to Jordan in exchange for a peace treaty. Instead the new draft would continue the present system of Jordanian, Israeli and local control, formalize it in the peace treaty and provide for a sharing of government services to be negotiated by Israel and Jordan.

Dayan is scheduled to arrive in Washington Sept. 19 to discuss the plan with Carter and Vance. Vance is to transmit the Israeli proposals to the foreign ministers of Egypt, Jordan and Syria when he meets them later in the week at the start of the General Assembly in New York.

Rejecting the Israeli proposals, a senior official of the Egyptian Foreign Ministry said Sunday they "show Begin's government has no serious intention of settling the Middle East conflict peacefully."

"The ideas it contains are obsolete," another Egyptian official said.

The two officials repeated the Arabs' basic demands — for Israeli withdrawal from all territory taken in the 1967 war and for a homeland for the Palestinians who fled from Israel when it became a state in 1948.

into the case.

The comptroller of the currency's report was shown on Saturday to members and staff employees of the Senate committee, which last week began hearings to look into questionable practices allegedly used by Lance while he headed the National Bank of Georgia and the Calhoun (Ga.) First National Bank.

Quoting sources said to have seen parts of the comptroller's report, the Post said the controls the banks used to keep track of the airplanes used by Lance were so loose that even the pilot was able to take personal trips in the aircraft.

The Post said Lance asserted in the report that the trips he took in the planes were business-related and therefore properly charged to the banks.

If the trips were not business-related, Lance could be in violation of securities and tax laws.

Meanwhile, a Newsweek-Gallup special telephone survey of 501 persons last Thursday showed 54 per cent think Carter has tried too hard to protect Lance, a long-time personal friend.

Midge Costanza, special presidential assistant for public liaison, said in Rochester, N.Y., on Saturday that Lance should resign "to relieve the President of this burden."

And Senate Majority Leader Robert Byrd of West Virginia said Saturday that Lance's resignation is inevitable because his effectiveness and credibility have been destroyed.

No. 2 Cont. from page 1

Lloyd said Bolin gave no reasons to the city for his action and that he did not submit a letter of resignation.

Bolin had been water superintendent for the past 10 years. Before that his dad, Albert Bolin, was water superintendent.

Bolin was not available for comment this morning, but a member of his family suggested it was due to disagreement with a member of the City Council.

The resignation left only Crowe in the water department to cope with the crisis. He has been helped by Lloyd.

Matters were already bad enough, but to further complicate the situation, pump number six broke down Sunday afternoon.

Lloyd said it is still not certain what the problem is. He called the Singer Co. Sunday night, but was told that a crew could not be gotten together and to Bloomfield that night, but that they planned to bring the repaired pump back today and then they could look at pump number six.

Hopefully, they will put pump number seven back in, get it working and then examine pump number six and see what the problem is.

Lloyd quoted Crowe as estimating that it would take at least four to five hours to get pump number seven working, but there is no telling how long it will take to get pump number six back in working order.

The only pump remaining in working order is now pumping only 50 gallons per minute, or about 3,000 gallons per hour. As a comparison, Lloyd pointed out that from 7 a.m. Saturday to 7 a.m. Sunday an average 11,345 gallons per hour was used.

In case of a fire, Lloyd said, the remaining pump could supply enough water to bring it under control. Water is available for no other purpose, however, during the shortage.

If the shortage continues, could it hurt the planned Bloomfield homecoming, scheduled to start tonight?

Lloyd thinks not, since only one attraction needs water and "we can get by without that."

He was speaking of the dunking booth. Citizens are apparently taking the shortage in good humor.

Lloyd said this morning he had received only a few complaints from citizens about the situation.

There are also the usual jokes about "selling water for $10 a gallon," Lloyd said.

It is a serious problem, "you can hardly do without water," Lloyd said, then jokingly asked, "What are you going to do? Pray for rain."

Then, as an afterthought, "But that won't help, either."

Senate to consider against gas guzzlers

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate is ready to take on inefficient, fuel-hungry automobiles as it considers legislation that would prohibit automakers from building any more "gas guzzlers."

A ban on cars that get less than 16 miles per gallon beginning in 1980 and increasing to 21 miles per gallon by 1985 is part of an energy conservation bill scheduled for Senate action today.

The Senate will spend most of the week on energy legislation, playing a game of catch-up with the House, which passed its version of President Carter's energy program early last month.

After disposing of a number of minor bills today, the House will turn its attention on Tuesday to legislation to raise the $2.30-per-hour minimum wage to $2.65, effective Jan. 1.

And the financial troubles of President Carter's budget director, Bert Lance, will continue to command congressional attention this week. Lance goes before the Senate Governmental Affairs Committee on Thursday to defend his transactions as a Georgia banker, before he joined the administration.

Both the chairman and ranking minority member of that panel — Sens. Abraham Ribicoff, D-Conn., and Charles Percy, R-Ill. — have already recommended that Lance resign.

A gas-guzzler tax, along with other tax aspects of the administration's energy plan — including a wellhead tax on oil and new taxes on industrial use of oil and natural gas — are before the Senate Finance Committee, expected to begin taking votes this week.

And a deeply divided Senate Energy Committee will try again today to act on President Carter's natural gas pricing plan. Carter wants to continue price controls on natural gas, but at higher levels. But as of late last week, the panel was said to be divided 9-9 between that plan and a rival one, backed by the industry, calling for lifting the price controls entirely.

Senate Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va., said the natural gas bill will be taken up by the Senate as soon as the measure comes out of the committee. If necessary, he said, the full chamber may be called on to resolve the gas pricing dispute.

In other congressional action, a House Ways and Means subcommittee scheduled work today on President Carter's proposals for overhauling the nation's troubled Social Security system.

And a House-Senate conference committee is working on the $460 billion federal budget bills for fiscal year 1978, passed in slightly different forms by each chamber. Leaders are hopeful the legislation will be ready for final congressional action by Thursday.

Suitcase, batteries are stolen

A suitcase and batteries were taken in separate thefts, according to the Public Safety Department.

The suitcase was taken from a car belonging to Doyal Morgan, 310 S. Kingshighway, while it was parked at the El Capri Motel. The theft occurred about 4:30 p.m. Friday.

The suitcase was valued at $50 and contained $48 in cash and personal items.

Two 12-volt batteries valued at $80 were taken from two cars parked at West Side Shell service station, 903 W. Malone Ave., between 8 p.m. Saturday and 7 a.m. Sunday.

Wilson convicted

BLOOMFIELD — A Stoddard County Jury Friday night found a 28-year-old rural Senath man guilty of manslaughter and leaving the scene of a traffic accident in connection with the April death of a Botheel youth.

The jury sentenced Lester Wilson, 28, of Senath, Route One, to three months in the Dunklin County Jail on the manslaughter conviction and levied a $500 fine. They also fined the defendant $100 on a leaving the scene of an accident conviction.

They acquitted Wilson, however, on a driving while intoxicated charge after the day-long case, heard on a change of venue from Dunklin County.

Wilson was allowed to remain free on his original bond pending a decision on filing an appeal.

The charges against Wilson stemmed from an April 4 accident on Township Line Road four miles north of Hornersville.

Troopers investigating the case said Wilson was westbound on the wrong side of the dirt road in a pickup truck. Two officers allege the truck struck and killed 16-year-old Robert D. Thomason, of Senath, Route One, knocking him 90 feet from where he was walking.

Witnesses said the driver of the truck stopped, got out of his vehicle, then got back in and drove away at high speed.

Wilson was arrested later that night by Trooper J.M. Pemberton.

Judge Stanley Grimm, Cape Girardeau's 32nd Judicial Circuit presided over the case after disqualification earlier of Judge Flake McHaney from Dunklin County.

Catholic leaders to meet and discuss human rights

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter is meeting with Catholic leaders who want to know specifically what his human rights crusade will mean in the practice of foreign policy.

The session today in the Oval Office at the White House was arranged at the request of Archbishop Joseph L. Bernardin, president of the National Conference of Catholic Bishops, and Bishop Thomas Kelly, general secretary of the U.S. Catholic Conference.

Both are in general support of Carter's human rights stand as well as the general outline of his new Panama Canal treaty. They said through spokesman Russ Shaw they also appreciate Carter's ban on federal funding for most abortions.

The Department of Health, Education and Welfare has stopped funding for all abortions except those performed to save a mother's life.

Catholic bishops want a constitutional amendment to — an abortions altogether. During his campaign last year, Carter told the Catholic clergy he is personally opposed to abortions, but he declined to endorse their proposed amendment.

On human rights, Shaw said, "the President's commitment is very much in line with what we have been saying for a long time." Therefore, he said, the bishops are "supportive in a general way."

"But we, like a lot of people, are still in the dark about the specifics of it — what the President's human rights policy will mean in practice," Shaw said.

Carter got a cheering, whistling reception Saturday from 15,000 Italian-Americans in a predominantly Catholic neighborhood in Trenton, N.J., during his first campaign trip as President. He spent the day stumping for incumbent Gov. Brendan Byrne.

Carter's welcome in the Chambersburg district of Trenton followed boing from state income tax protesters in a crowd of 3,500 at a predominantly black medical school in Newark, N.J.

Carter got a boost over the weekend from the Gallup Poll, which said 66 per cent of the Americans it surveyed approve of his performance. That's a drop of only one percentage point since April. It contrasts to a 17 point drop in the Harris Survey since April.

But a Newsweek-Gallup survey showed 54 per cent of the respondents to a special telephone poll of 501 persons last Thursday night believe Carter has tried to protect Budget Director Bert Lance too much.

A THOUGHT TO REMEMBER

RAYMOND CREWS

In a group discussion not too long ago, it was asked why people curse in conversation. It was noted with amazement that some cursers are successful, brilliant men, capable of good speech. Cussing is a habit one acquires to add impact to words. Those who lack language with profanity do it because they fear normal expression lacks strength to put a point across. There is no question that the cussing habit can be broken.

One man in the group told an interesting story. He related how, years ago, his three year old boy stumbled and stubbed his toe. The child let out with an explosive barrage of cussing which shocked his mother and dad. Before they could say anything, the child slyly sensed their shock. In the quick of a wink, he changed from sinner to saint and started to sing, "Jesus loves me, this I know, for the Bible tells me so." The fellow told how he and his wife, while shocked, had to inwardly chuckle over the surprisingly quick transition of the little rascal. Since habits are mostly formed by association or example, especially with impressionable youngsters, both parents decided then and there to never use even mild profanity ever again.

The son is now a grown man. He is a fine person and an interesting conversationalist. His parents are too.
